The Fourth Ballot Makes It in Rhinebeck

By LYNN MULVANEY

Buses, books, basketballs and hot beef on buns are going to be back at Rhinebeck Central Schools.

District voters, going to the polls for the fourth time this year, gave approval yesterday to a five-part budget package which will restore textbooks, transportation, athletics and cafeteria service.

The voter turnout of 1,400, although considered heavy, was 226 less than at the last balloting Sept. 26 when residents turned down a single budget figure that was almost $17,000 more than proposed this time. Yesterday's residents cast their ballots for a budget of $1,350,569 as follows:

| Item   | Yes | No  |
|--|-----|-----|
| Change Budget Status from Austerity to Operational | 854 | 490 |
| Transportation                                     | 815 | 595 |
| Instructional Services                             | 731 | 666 |
| Cafeteria $800                                    | 892 | 513 |
| Plant Operation                                    | 716 | 676 |

If Rhinebeck's repeated past rejections of a school budget appears unique. It isn't.

In May, 1967 there were 57 school districts in New York State whose proposed budgets for the 1967-68 school year were turned down by voters. This was more than double the number (27) rejected in May 1966 and far larger than in any previous year. By July the total had risen to 69.

The defeats for June and July, though more numerous than in recent years, are not so spectacular an increase.

Studies by the New York State Education Department indicate that it is the taxpayer in the middle ranges of the real property tax base who is protesting.

Most of the rejecting districts passed their budgets on the second or third try. However, at the time school opened in September, five districts, Rhinebeck among them, were operating on an austerity budget.

In a report issued this week the state summarized the defeats saying most occurred in the New York City metropolitan areas with relatively high tax rates. "The factors which were of greatest importance were resistance to higher taxes and resentment against the lack of general state aid increase," the report states.

$1.26 Tax Hike

Yesterday's vote will mean a $1.26 tax increase per thousand dollars of assessed valuation for Rhinebeck residents. Other rate increases include: Clinton, $6.06; Hyde Park, $3.97; Milan, $7.99; Red Hook, $5.78 and Stanford, $5.53.

The amount of tax works out to be: Rhinebeck, $18.90; Clinton, $18.79; Hyde Park, $18.86; Milan, $18.78; Red Hook, $18.79 and Stanford, $18.80.

Was Mandate

The fourth referendum came as a mandate from the people when a petition signed by 709 persons was presented to the Board of Education last month. Prior to that time voters turned down the first budget of $1,400,694 and the second and third, each for $1,367,345.

Under the austerity budget, which the school system has operated under since September, interscholastic activities affecting 150 youngsters were cut, car pools and bag lunches were much in evidence and elementary school books could not be purchased.

Cold Air Headed Our Way

By JEAN F. DOLAN

Wintery blasts brought sugar cookie topping to the Ulster County landscape way ahead of schedule today.

Most of the county got just a trace of snow overnight but shivered in early morning lows in the teens and 20's. Predictions are for "a cold wave" tonight with temperatures dipping to well below freezing.

In Kingston, the overnight reading was just eight degrees above the record low of 20 degrees for this date established in 1939.

Up at Belleayre Ski Center, pre-season snow report indicated a three-inch accumulation on the slopes with flurries coming out of gray skies this morning. The 9 a. m. temperature at mountain top was a chilly 12 degrees. The popular skiers mecca usually opens for business the second week in December.

At Tannersville, high up in Greene County, a two to three-inch accumulation of fluffy white was pushed around by strong winds during the early morning phase of the storm. Snow started falling in mountain areas at about dusk yesterday.

An inch of snow was recorded in the Saugerties area. No difficulties were reported as far as traffic flow was concerned.

The first school closing of the season was reported this morning by St. Peter's in Kingston. Heating difficulties rather than snowfall was given as the reason.

Ulster County fared well in comparison to the rest of the state.

Western New York State which has already seen more than its share of winter was reporting drifts up to four feet. A foot of snow was reported in the Erie County hamlet of East Concord and in parts of Wyoming County. An additional five inches of snow was predicted for the lee of the lakes snow belt by tonight.

In the southern Adirondacks, 11 inches of snow was measured at Canada Lake, north of Gloversville.

Pickets and Police Clash During Rusk Talk in New York

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Screaming mobs of antiwar pickets clashed with police in a sporadic running street battle Tuesday night as they protested a speech-making appearance by Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

At Least 46 Arrested

Police counted at least 46 persons arrested from the crowd they estimated at some 3,000. Five policemen and an undetermined number of civilians were injured.

The violence broke out in front of the New York Hilton Hotel, on Sixth Avenue in midtown Manhattan, where Rusk was addressing a dinner meeting of the Foreign Policy Association.

Renewing his offer to the North Vietnamese government to "negotiate today without condition," Rusk told an audience of 1,200 "if a representative of Hanoi would make himself available anywhere to discuss peace I would be there."

He chided opponents of the war who, he said, "would brush aside a security treaty as a scrap of paper," urging his listeners to "reflect soberly on the dangers which would arise if it should be discovered that our security treaties do not mean what they say."

Departing from his prepared text he took note of the demonstrators and challenged "those who carry the banner, 'Peace in Vietnam,'" to produce a representative of North Vietnam willing to negotiate.

Theatergoers Trapped

Heavy police guards prevented the demonstrators from effective harassment of the dinner proceedings and elements of the crowd circulated up and down

Sixth Avenue and over as far as Times Square.

There, theatergoers found themselves trapped in stores and restaurants as the crowds of demonstrators swarmed over the sidewalks and taunted mounted police. The windshield of one cab was kicked in.

200 Link Hands

On Sixth Avenue a group of some 200 youths linked hands and blocked traffic at several intersections between 51st and 44th Sts. Five false fire alarms were turned in, adding fire equipment to the traffic stalemate.

Running along sidewalks and into streets, the mostly young, huddled plastic bags of red liquid at police and passing cars.

Patrolmen moved in shoulder to shoulder to break up the crowds, first prodding with their nightsticks and then swinging if the demonstrators did not move.

As Machione Levels Charge

By HUGH REYNOLDS

John Machione (R-12th Ward) today accused Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan of reneging on a promise to remove three streets from urban renewal's demolition list.

Three Streets Involved

The streets in question are Hurley Avenue, Murphy Street and Taylor Street, which under the approved plan of Jan. 7, buildings on which are scheduled for demolition.

Machione says that urban renewal people were in the area yesterday taking surveys. The 12th Ward alderman says that Garraghan agreed to ask for the removal of the streets from the demolition list and either change the plan to completely eliminate the three streets from the urban renewal uptown area or if they had to be included, to rehabilitate the homes.

Garraghan today agreed with Machione saying, "I promised those people their homes would not be demolished and I intend to keep that promise. It's news to me that urban renewal was up in the 12th Ward doing surveys. Those homes are going to stay and if necessary, they'll be rehabilitated. I don't care if they have to call a special meeting of the urban renewal agency."

Updating Records

Ward Tongue, acting executive director of the agency told The Freeman that the surveys were for the purpose of updating agency records on Uptown. Tongue said the agency is using the approved plan as a guideline which calls for the demolition of properties on the three streets.

Tongue said plans call for the clearing of the area for commercial purposes. It is expected that light industry will take the place of the present homes. A plan change, in this case, considered major by Tongue, could be both lengthy and involved. Public hearings would have to be held, changes drawn up and then submitted for approval from federal and state agencies.

According to Machione, a public hearing over this current hassle was held in August of last year. At the time, he could not grant the residents' wishes.

Things Have Changed

Things have changed since that summer of '66 meeting mainly because of plans by the Army Corps of Engineers for an $800,000 dike along the Esopus Creek in the area of present contention, specifically Murphy Street.

The levee will run from Washington Avenue to the Sears Property line in Kingston Plaza. It will be an earthen facility, six to ten feet high, sloped at an approximate 33 per cent grade.

The city's only cost will be the maintenance of the levy.

Right-of-way must be granted by the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency, which controls part of the land and the Plaza. Upon completion, control of the land is expected to revert to the original owners.

The Freeman learned today from G. Scott Alexander, urban renewal agency chairman, that fears of the scrapping of the levee plans have been somewhat unfounded.

When contacted by The Freeman, Alexander was preparing to meet with the mayor and Tongue. "I don't doubt we'll work this problem out," Alexander said. "We've reached tentative agreement over demolition on Murphy Street and any problems we might have in the Taylor Street, Hurley Avenue area can be resolved. At this time, plans for the levee are proceeding."

"As far as the resurvey of Uptown is concerned this was ordered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development in New York. Changes in Uptown have been proposed before and the agency feels it's only practical to have the latest available information on which to base those changes, if any."

Changes in Uptown and demolition Downtown, among other issues, will be discussed at the next regular meeting of the urban renewal agency Nov. 21.

OK Kingston Bus Fare Hike, 25 Cent Toll Starts Sunday

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Permission to increase bus fares by five cents a ride — raising the fare in the City of Kingston from 20 to 25 cents — has been gained by the Urban Transit Corp., according to the State Public Service Commission. The increase begins this Sunday.

The PSC has accepted for filing a tariff amendment of the bus company. A spokesman for UTC said today no official notification had been received by the company.

School Tickets Hold

The price of school tickets, now sold at 10 for $1.50 will not be affected, the PSC noted. The Commission acted after examination of company records indicated that except for 1965 when it earned a slight profit, the carrier has operated at annual losses ever since it began service on Nov. 4, 1963 as the successor to the Kingston City Transportation Corp., which quit operating in the city on Nov. 2 of that year after conducting bus service here since 1927.

The study made by the PSC of the UTC records indicated that the company's operating loss for the year ended last June 30 exceeded $13,800, and that despite operating economies would approach $5,000 during the year ending Nov. 30, 1968.

The UTC operates four routes wholly within the City of Kingston on which the adult fare is now 20 cents. This will be increased on Sunday to 25 cents. The company also operates a route extending from Kingston to a point in the Town of Ulster serving the Ulster Shopping Plaza.

The Through fare on the Town of Ulster route is now 35 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. These fares will be increased to 40 and 30 cents respectively. Existing transfer privileges will be continued.

Expect $12,600 Yield

It is estimated that the new fares will provide the company with about $12,600 additional annual revenue, sufficient to enable it to earn only a modest return during the next 12 months.

Without the fare increase, it was indicated that the company might not be able to continue all existing services.

The PSC accepted the higher fare schedule on a finding that more revenue was needed to help offset the operating losses.

Julius Lipton is head of the Urban Transit Corp., which has 12 diesel buses with 32-passenger capacity. Prior to the formation of the UTC, Lipton completed a modern, up-to-date garage on Harwich Street. This building houses a fleet of 26 buses, including 12 for city and Town of Ulster routes, and others for the suburban school bus routes and the Lipton Bee Line operation between Kingston and Saugerties through Mt. Marion.

Increased Service

When Lipton took over the Kingston City Transportation Corp., he continued to operate the four original routes, the Broadway - Ferry, Hasbrouck Avenue, Washington - Foxhall and the Fairview-Wilbur lines. Almost immediately after taking over the former corporation's operations, Lipton increased service on three of the four original routes. The UTC also operates two special school bus routes and a regular bus for pupils in the Kingston Consolidated School District.

CSEA Is Bargaining Agent

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller reported today he had decided to recognize the Civil Service Employees Association as the collective bargaining agent for most of the state's employees.

His decision settled a rivalry between the CSEA and New York State Council 50, AFL-CIO, over which organization would negotiate with the state under the terms of the new Public Employees Relations Act, commonly called the Taylor Law.

Marilyn's Riches Released

NEW YORK (AP) — Jewelry and furs once worn by the late Marilyn Monroe are to be released from the police department's property clerk's office next week.

The 41 items, including a $25,000 white ermine coat, were taken from her apartment on Aug. 7, 1962, the day after her death on the West Coast.

We're at 200-Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will hit 200 million population mark next Monday. But the private Population Reference Bureau says the nation has already topped that total.

Although bureau officials are sticking to plans to celebrate the occasion at 11 a. m. Monday, when the big census clock in the Commerce Department turns over 200 million, some concede their private counterpart might be right.

Reagan Was Injudicious

California Gov. Ronald Reagan says he made "an injudicious statement" regarding columnist Drew Pearson, who had reported that two Reagan aides were fired for homosexual activities.

Asked at a news conference Tuesday whether he had said "Pearson had better not spit on the sidewalk if he returns to California, and if so, was that statement intended as a threat," Reagan replied he made an injudicious statement in response to questions at a recent airport news conference.

But the Republican governor said the story that he had known for six months of a homosexual ring in his administration and had refused to do anything about it "was totally false and I reiterate it was totally false."

'I Will Be Back,' Shirley Retorts

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Writer

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black, former child movie star attempting a political debut, was defeated Tuesday for the Republican nomination for Congress by Paul N. McCloskey, Korean war hero who advocates American disengagement from the Vietnam war.

McCloskey, 40, Navy Cross and Silver Star winner, faces

Democrat Roy A. Archibald, 47, in a Dec. 12 runoff election. They will contend for San Mateo county's 11th District seat vacated by the death of the late J. Arthur Younger, a Republican.

Mrs. Black told her supporters, "I will be back. This was my first race and now I know how the game is played. I plan to dedicate my life and energies to public service because I think my country needs it now more than ever."

With 564 of San Mateo County's 575 precincts counted Tuesday, McCloskey rolled up 50,634 votes to 33,015 for Mrs. Black.

Archibald polled 14,645 votes against 8,546 for Edward M. Keating, his nearest Democratic rival.

Viet Issue on Top

The campaign confrontation on Vietnam between McCloskey and Mrs. Black, 39, now a Woodside housewife and mother of three, was mainly on the Vietnam issue.

She urged leaving conduct of the war to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, "the experienced military leaders of the United States."

In a victory statement, McCloskey declared voters had endorsed his ideas "for pressing for negotiations to gradually disengage U.S. forces from Vietnam."

Archibald, the Democratic nominee, also is a critic of present Vietnam policy.

"We should stop our bombing of the North and carry on an all-out diplomatic offensive to bring about peace negotiations," he said.

Hints '68 Run

Mrs. Black said she offered her congratulations to the winners of the field of four Republican and six Democratic contenders.

"I might even see them next year, who knows," she concluded, hinting she may run again in the June 1968 primary.

The Dec. 12 winner will serve only the unexpired remainder of Younger's term—until next November.

The Through fare on the Town of Ulster route is now 35 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. These fares will be increased to 40 and 30 cents respectively. Existing transfer privileges will be continued.

Expect $12,600 Yield

It is estimated that the new fares will provide the company with about $12,600 additional annual revenue, sufficient to enable it to earn only a modest return during the next 12 months.

Without the fare increase, it was indicated that the company might not be able to continue all existing services.

The PSC accepted the higher fare schedule on a finding that more revenue was needed to help offset the operating losses. Julius Lipton is head of the Urban Transit Corp., which has 12 diesel buses with 32-passenger capacity. Prior to the formation of the UTC, Lipton completed a modern, up-to-date garage on Harwich Street, this building houses a fleet of 26 buses, including 12 for city and Town of Ulster routes, and the others for the suburban school bus routes and the Lipton Bee Line operation between Kingston and Saugerties through Mt. Marion.

Increased Service When Lipton took over the Kingston City Transportation Corp., he continued to operate the four original routes, the Broadway-Ferry, Hasbrouck Avenue, Washington-Foxhall and the Fairview-Wilbur lines.

Almost immediately after taking over the former corporation's operations, Lipton increased service on three of the four original routes. The UTC also operates two special school bus routes and a regular bus for pupils in the Kingston Consolidated School District.

CSEA Is Bargaining Agent

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller reported today he had decided to recognize the Civil Service Employees Association as the collective bargaining agent for most of the state's employees.

His decision settled a rivalry between the CSEA and New York State Council 50, AFL-CIO, over which organization would negotiate with the state under the terms of the new Public Employees Relations Act, commonly called the Taylor Law.

Marilyn's Riches Released

NEW YORK (AP)—Jewelry and furs once worn by the late Marilyn Monroe are to be released from the police department's property clerk's office next week.

The 41 items, including a $25,000 white ermine coat, were taken from her apartment on Aug. 7, 1962, the day after her death on the West Coast.

We're at 200-Million

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States will hit 200 million population mark next Monday. But the private Population Reference Bureau says the nation has already topped that total.

Although bureau officials are sticking to plans to celebrate the occasion at 11 a. m. Monday, when the big census clock in the Commerce Department turns over 200 million, some concede their private counterpart might be right.

Reagan Was Injudicious

California Gov. Ronald Reagan says he made "an injudicious statement" regarding columnist Drew Pearson, who had reported that two Reagan aides were fired for homosexual activities.

Asked at a news conference Tuesday whether he had said "Pearson had better not spit on the sidewalk if he returns to California, and if so, was that statement intended as a threat," Reagan replied he made an injudicious statement in response to questions at a recent airport news conference.

But the Republican governor said the story that he had known for six months of a homosexual ring in his administration and had refused to do anything about it "was totally false and I reiterate it was totally false."

Viet Critic Coast Winner

'I Will Be Back,' Shirley Retorts

By LEIF ERICKSON

Associated Press Writer

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black, former child movie star attempting a political debut, was defeated Tuesday for the Republican nomination for Congress by Paul N. McCloskey, Korean war hero who advocates American disengagement from the Vietnam war.

McCloskey, 40, Navy Cross and Silver Star winner, faces Democrat Roy A. Archibald, 47, in a Dec. 12 runoff election. They will contend for San Mateo county's 11th District seat vacated by the death of the late J. Arthur Younger, a Republican. Mrs. Black told her supporters, "I will be back. This was my first race and now I know how the game is played. I plan to dedicate my life and energies to public service because I think my country needs it now more than ever."

With 564 of San Mateo County's 575 precincts counted Tuesday, McCloskey rolled up 50,634 votes to 33,015 for Mrs. Black.

Archibald polled 14,645 votes against 8,546 for Edward M. Keating, his nearest Democratic rival.

Viet Issue on Top

The campaign confrontation on Vietnam between McCloskey and Mrs. Black, 39, now a Woodside housewife and mother of three, was mainly on the Vietnam issue.

She urged leaving conduct of the war to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, "the experienced military leaders of the United States."

In a victory statement, McCloskey declared voters had endorsed his ideas "for pressing for negotiations to gradually disengage U.S. forces from Vietnam."

Archibald, the Democratic nominee, also is a critic of present Vietnam policy. "We should stop our bombing of the North and carry on an all-out diplomatic offensive to bring about peace negotiations," he said.

Hints '68 Run

Mrs. Black said she offered her congratulations to the winners of the field of four Republican and six Democratic contenders.

"I might even see them next year, who knows," she concluded, hinting she may run again in the June 1968 primary.

Abram on Verge For Senate Race

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — His utterances injected fresh excitement into the post-election state political scene. Only two days ago, U.S. Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick of Ellenville became the first Democrat to announce his candidacy for the nomination opposing powerful Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits.

While Resnick was definitely in the race and Abram on the verge, former New York Mayor Robert F. Wagner continued to ponder whether to try to follow his father to the U.S. Senate. Asked why he wanted to try for a Senate seat, Abram said he believed that the race question was "one of the most important of our time" and that he felt he had a "lot to do and say about trying to solve it."

I've lived with it since I was a kid," he added.

As for an election race in New York, Abram snapped, "I'm tired of the John Lindays picking up the votes of people who are friends of mine."

That apparently was a reference to Mayor John V. Lindsay's 1965 election to the mayoralty—an achievement bolstered by strong support from liberal voters, including many Jewish-Americans.

Abram, who moved to New York five years ago from Georgia, is a partner in a prominent New York City law firm, the one that handled the suit brought by the family of the late President John F. Kennedy, in connection with a book about Kennedy's assassination.

Abram reportedly has warm support from the Kennedy family. He served as a general counsel to the Peace Corps during the Kennedy administration.

No Pledge Yet

He told newsmen in Albany that, although he had no pledge of support from U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, he had discussed the possibility of running for senator both with Kennedy and with Democratic National Committee member Edward Weiss, regarded as President Johnson's spokesman in the New York Democratic Party.

He emphasized that he would not seek the nomination unless he could count on backing from Kennedy, since he regarded Kennedy as the leader of the party in New York.

Garraghan Mulls Treasurer Choice

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Who's going to be the new city treasurer? That question has been bandied about City Hall since the election of the present treasurer, Orrie R. Riehl, to the county legislature. Riehl will not seek reappointment to his $8,500 a year job, preferring, instead, to devote full time to his $2,000 legislative post.

Non-Committal

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan is non-committal, saying, "Oh, I've heard a lot of names mentioned." One thing appears sure, party influence will have little or no effect on Garraghan's decision. "I'm going to get the best man I can," Garraghan has said. "If the party happens to recommend him, that'll be nice. If not, too bad."

Several names have been mentioned, however. Prominent among them has been Stanley J. Petro Jr., the 30-year old Democratic candidate for alderman in the Third Ward who narrowly lost to incumbent John Naccarato in last week's elections.

Petro is considered by many Democratic Party veterans to be one of the bright, new lights in the party. He was beaten by only 69 votes by Naccarato who was swept into office two years ago by 241 votes.

Petro has also been non-committal about accepting the treasurer's post, if offered. It would be a major decision for Petro who is currently an employee of the Rondout National Bank in Port Ewen.

Said Petro today to The Freeman, "I would be interested in the treasurer's job because of the experience I would gain in government and because it relates to my background in finance."

Also Mentioned

Riehl's assistant, John Houghtaling, has also been mentioned. He is considered the best qualified for the job, having worked in the treasurer's office for almost 10 years.

Riehl told The Freeman today that he thinks an experienced capable man is an absolute necessity in the treasurer's office. He said the treasurer is the city's chief fiscal officer and as such must sign all checks, handle all bond notes and make sure that money is available for whatever resolutions the aldermen may pass. He must also be acquainted with state municipal laws in regards to finance. "There's a lot of things you can do in business that you can't do under state statute," Riehl said. "Just because a man is successful in business doesn't mean he'd make a good treasurer."

The treasurer is responsible for collection of traffic fines and the meter man, William Ballard, is an employee. Other employees include a payroll clerk, principal account clerk, principal clerk, senior account clerk, and a part time clerk who also works with the engineering department.

It would appear that the new city treasurer will not come from another city department. Assessor Matthew Richardson, a former city treasurer, has been mentioned but Garraghan turned thumbs down on that this morning. Said the mayor, "I've got the best assessor in the state and he's going to stay where he is."

Garraghan has until Jan. 1 to make a decision. Riehl will be sworn in as a county legislator on that date.

Reds Hit Ammo Dump

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese mortar attacks on the airstrip at Dak To today blew up the main ammunition dump for allied forces in the embattled central highlands town, destroyed two big U.S. C130 transport planes and damaged another, and set off a raging fire which spread to the adjacent special forces camp.

Supply Is Enough

Although the ammunition dump at the airstrip was the main supply point for U.S. forces in the area where hard fighting has raged for two weeks, American officers there said they had enough ammunition on hand to withstand a major attack "and we can get more."

The special forces camp, housing 500 Montagnard irregulars and 15 U.S. Green Beret advisers, was being evacuated.

Northeast of Dak To in the coastal lowlands, Communist gunners shot down their third U.S. helicopter in two days, killing eight Americans. But around the highlands town where thousands of North Vietnamese and American troops have been battling since Nov. 1, the chief attacks were with mortars, artillery and planes for the second successive day.

The North Vietnamese made two mortar attacks on the Dak To airstrip, which they had shelled three times in the past two weeks.

Two-Hour Opener

The first attack, in the morning, lasted two hours. In it the two C130s were destroyed, a third was damaged, and three South Vietnamese troops were reported wounded.

The second shelling began shortly before dark and lasted about an hour. An officer in charge of the ammunition dump estimated there were 500 tons of stores in it, ranging from rifle bullets to heavy artillery shells.

As about 30 mortar rounds dropped into the area, sheets of flame spewed across the area of the dump and smoke billowed high into the air. Tracers soared into the sky from the exploding shells. The fire spread to the adjoining special forces camp which was reported in flames.

No planes were reported hit in the second attack, and there was no immediate word of casualties.

Viets Pull Back

Northeast of the Dak To area, a battalion of South Vietnamese infantrymen trying to take a strategic hill ran into heavy resistance for the second day and had to pull back. Ten government troops were reported killed in the assault Tuesday and 10 wounded; casualties today were not available yet.

Twenty-five miles south of Dak To, enemy troops operating under cover of another mortar barrage fought their way into a South Vietnamese headquarters compound only 500 yards from the provincial capital of Kontum. The Communists set off explosive charges which blew up one building, damaged three others and a helicopter landing pad and killed seven militiamen. Communist casualties were not known.

U.S. B52 bombers made their 14th strike in two weeks today.

Abram on Verge For Senate Race

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Georgia-born Morris B. Abram, a New York City lawyer and civil rights advocate, was virtually committed today to a bid for the Democratic nomination for U.S. senator.

The 49-year-old Abram, a law partner of former presidential adviser Theodore Sorensen, said Tuesday night he probably would declare his candidacy for his party's nomination in February. Questioned by capital newsmen, Abram said it was his "present intention" to enter the senatorial race then but that he wanted to study the political picture before doing so.

His utterances injected fresh excitement into the post-election state political scene. Only two days ago, U.S. Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick of Ellenville became the first Democrat to announce his candidacy for the nomination opposing powerful Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits.

While Resnick was definitely in the race and Abram on the verge, former New York Mayor Robert F. Wagner continued to ponder whether to try to follow his father to the U.S. Senate.

Asked why he wanted to try for a Senate seat, Abram said he believed that the race question was "one of the most important of our time" and that he felt he had a "lot to do and say about trying to solve it."

I've lived with it since I was a kid," he added.

As for an election race in New York, Abram snapped, "I'm tired of the John Lindays picking up the votes of people who are friends of mine."

That apparently was a reference to Mayor John V. Lindsay's 1965 election to the mayoralty—an achievement bolstered by strong support from liberal voters, including many Jewish-Americans.

Abram, who moved to New York five years ago from Georgia, is a partner in a prominent New York City law firm, the one that handled the suit brought by the family of the late President John F. Kennedy, in connection with a book about Kennedy's assassination.

Abram reportedly has warm support from the Kennedy family. He served as a general counsel to the Peace Corps during the Kennedy administration.

No Pledge Yet

He told newsmen in Albany that, although he had no pledge of support from U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, he had discussed the possibility of running for senator both with Kennedy and with Democratic National Committeeman Edward Weiss, regarded as President Johnson's spokesman in the New York Democratic Party.

He emphasized that he would not seek the nomination unless he could count on backing from Kennedy, since he regarded Kennedy as the leader of the party in New York.

Garraghan Mulls Treasurer Choice

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Who's going to be the new city treasurer? That question has been bandied about City Hall since the election of the present treasurer, Orrie R. Riehl, to the county legislature. Riehl will not seek reappointment to his $8,500 a year job, preferring, instead, to devote full time to his $2,000 legislative post.

Non-Committal

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan is non-committal, saying, "Oh, I've heard a lot of names mentioned." One thing appears sure, party influence will have little or no effect on Garraghan's decision. "I'm going to get the best man I can," Garraghan has said. "If the party happens to recommend him, that'll be nice. If not, too bad."

Several names have been mentioned, however. Prominent among them has been Stanley J. Petro Jr., the 30-year old Democratic candidate for alderman in the Third Ward who narrowly lost to incumbent John Naccarato in last week's elections.

Petro is considered by many Democratic Party veterans to be one of the bright, new lights in the party. He was beaten by only 69 votes by Naccarato who was swept into office two years ago by 241 votes.

Petro has also been non-committal about accepting the treasurer's post, if offered. It would be a major decision for Petro who is currently an employee of the Rondout National Bank in Port Jervis.

Said Petro today to The Freeman, "I would be interested in the treasurer's job because of the experience I would gain in government and because it relates to my background in finance."

Also Mentioned

Riehl's assistant, John Houghtaling, has also been mentioned. He is considered the best qualified for the job, having worked in the treasurer's office for almost 10 years.

Riehl told The Freeman today that he thinks an experienced capable man is an absolute necessity in the treasurer's office. He said the treasurer is the city's chief fiscal officer and as such must sign all checks, handle all bond notes and make sure that money is available for whatever resolutions the aldermen may pass.

He must also be acquainted with state municipal laws in regards to finance. "There's a lot of things you can do in business that you can't do under state statute," Riehl said. "Just because a man is successful in business doesn't mean he'd make a good treasurer."

The treasurer is responsible for collection of traffic fines and the meter man, William Ballard, is an employee. Other employees include a payroll clerk, principal account clerk, principal clerk, senior account clerk, and a part time clerk who also works with the engineering department.

It would appear that the new city treasurer will not come from another city department. Assessor Matthew Richardson, a former city treasurer, has been mentioned but Garraghan turned thumbs down on that this morning. Said the mayor, "I've got the best assessor in the state and he's going to stay where he is."

Garraghan has until Jan. 1 to make a decision. Riehl will be sworn in as a county legislator on that date.

Reds Hit Ammo Dump

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese mortar attacks on the airstrip at Dak To today blew up the main ammunition dump for allied forces in the embattled central highlands town, destroyed two big U.S. C130 transport planes and damaged another, and set off a raging fire which spread to the adjacent special forces camp.

Supply Is Enough

Although the ammunition dump at the airstrip was the main supply point for U.S. forces in the area where hard fighting has raged for two weeks, American officers there said they had enough ammunition on hand to withstand a major attack "and we can get more."

The special forces camp, housing 500 Montagnard irregulars and 15 U.S. Green Beret advisers, was being evacuated.

Northeast of Dak To in the coastal lowlands, Communist gunners shot down their third U.S. helicopter in two days, killing eight Americans. But around the highlands town where thousands of North Vietnamese and American troops have been battling since Nov. 1, the chief attacks were with mortars, artillery and planes for the second successive day.

The North Vietnamese made two mortar attacks on the Dak To airstrip, which they had shelled three times in the past two weeks.

Two-Hour Opener

The first attack, in the morning, lasted two hours. In it the two C130s were destroyed, a third was damaged, and three South Vietnamese troops were reported wounded.

The second shelling began shortly before dark and lasted about an hour. An officer in charge of the ammunition dump estimated there were 500 tons of stores in it, ranging from rifle bullets to heavy artillery shells.

As about 30 mortar rounds dropped into the area, sheets of flame spewed across the area of the dump and smoke billowed high into the air. Tracers soared into the sky from the exploding shells. The fire spread to the adjoining special forces camp which was reported in flames.

No planes were reported hit in the second attack, and there was no immediate word of casualties.

Viets Pull Back

Northeast of the Dak To area, a battalion of South Vietnamese infantrymen trying to take a strategic hill ran into heavy resistance for the second day and had to pull back. Ten government troops were reported killed in the assault Tuesday and 10 wounded; casualties today were not available yet.

Twenty-five miles south of Dak To, enemy troops operating under cover of another mortar barrage fought their way into a South Vietnamese headquarters compound only 500 yards from the provincial capital of Kontum. The Communists set off explosive charges which blew up one building, damaged three others and a helicopter landing pad and killed seven militiamen, Communist casualties were not known.

U.S. F4 bombers made their 14th strike in two weeks today.

Meat for the Family

When the House of Representatives voted 403 to 1 the other day for a bill aimed at assuring that all meat will meet Federal standards, it recognized the pervasive use of meat by the American family, and the need that all meat for the family table should be clean, wholesome and unadulterated.

Households in the United States consumed over 32 billion pounds of meat in 1965, the last year for which complete figures are available—equivalent to 166.9 pounds per person per year. When to this is added the 11 pounds of fish and 40.6 pounds of poultry consumed per person per year, the total of flesh, fish and fowl going on the family table in this country is nearly 10 ounces per person per day.

Not for 60 years had there been a major revision of the federal meat inspection law. That became necessary when it was learned that nearly 14 billion pounds of meat are sold each year wholly within states without federal inspection, and in some states with inadequate inspection. Federal inspection covers only meat in interstate trade.

The House bill would provide to states grants of up to half the cost of establishing inspection systems to upgrade inspection to federal standards. This will allow federal agents to inspect plants and scan records on shipments, to cope more effectively with contaminated meat. This is fine as far as it goes.

But good clean meat should know no state lines. The blue stamp of federal standards should guarantee all meat to the consumer. Here is one field where the might of the government should be imposed to assure that there is no contamination and that all meat is palatable, clean and wholesome.

The people should show their interest in this important piece of legislation by demanding that the Senate go further in extending the inspection law to all meat packing plants and to foreign plants exporting meats here.

Reduce Relief Rolls

Most people who give a thought to the mounting relief roll in a country that is in its 81st month of continuous prosperity are as puzzled by it as the officials on federal, state and city levels who struggle with the problem.

That a nation with an unemployment rate of 4 per cent or less has to have 8.4 million people on public assistance dismays the uninformed. The latest verified figures are 3.5 million children, with 1.14 million of their parents and adults taking care of them are so helped, 2 million 65 and older and 500,000 totally disabled and 85,000 blind.

Nationally, two-thirds of the dependent children have been abandoned by their fathers. Their mothers, if they work, must pay someone to look after them, and their pay barely does that. The ability of the rest to get to work is limited by disability.

Obviously, the obscending fathers are the ones who should be found and made to contribute to the support of their children. That is the least restitution they can make. Or they should be taxed and the money paid into a fund for a pool made up by such fathers for all abandoned children.

A recent Governor's conference at Arden House in New York had nothing better to offer than a family payment plan, another welfare plan. Daniel P. Moynihan, director of the MIT-Harvard Joint Center for Urban Studies urged an automatic family allowance for every child of $8 a month for a child under 6, $12 for children 6 to 17. Well off families would pay back much of their allowances through income taxes.

However, he figures the family allowance would cost the country $9 billion a year. The annual cost of public assistance now is $6.5 billion—$3.5 from the federal government, $3 billion from state and local government. What we are looking for is a way to reduce it, and eventually, eliminate this burden, not enlarge it. For that problem, the solution is to gradually diminish the size of the population that needs public assistance through education and training, not continued dependency.

The Soviet Union's support of the treaty forbidding nuclear weapons expansion will be meaningless if it furnishes Cuba with a nuclear reactor. Fidel Castro might say he will use it for peaceful purposes, but his sister, Jurnita, doubts it. So will most of the Latin American governments, who will fear him still more with the means to make nuclear arms.

David Lawrence Says

No 'Minority Rights' In Labor-Union World

By DAVID LAWRENCE
WASHINGTON — Much has been heard lately about the "right of dissent," but it becomes apparent that everything depends on whose ox is being gored.

Thus, there are no "demonstrations" or "civil liberties organizations" rising up to support the five members of a labor union in the broadcasting business who insisted on crossing the picket lines of another union, and who now have been fined a total of 46,300 dollars. Likewise, in the automobile industry, officers and members of a local labor union have been threatened with punishment because they refused to recognize the contract made with the Chrysler Corporation by the national union.

Nobody argues or demonstrates in behalf of these individuals that they have a constitutional right to dissent and to work or not to work wherever they please. The sacred "right to strike" has often been defended, but apparently when it is exercised by a local union in defiance of the orders of a national union, then the right to strike is tabooed along with the right to dissent.

There are plenty of "wildcat" strikes from time to time, and these, too, it could be contended, are covered by the "right of dissent." This may be carrying such a doctrine too far, as the damage done can be so extensive that the companies which are the victims of such tactics have often sued unions in the courts when strikes are alleged to have been instigated in violation of a contract.

It isn't too clear, therefore, where the "right of dissent" begins or ends. Certainly labor unions have always insisted that workers had to belong to unions in a shop where the majority chose the union as its bargaining agent. The minority is usually put at a disadvantage because, again and again, employers agree to this demand. Except in states which have "right to work" laws, the federal statute allows unions to obtain contracts that require workers to join a union within 30 days or else lose their jobs.

In such instances, to express the "right of dissent" actually means unemployment. The labor unions have always held to the theory that in a way they are analogous to a governmental organization and should be permitted to exercise disciplinary authority over their members. This is the reason why, when one union goes on strike in a plant, members of the other unions have to respect the picket lines. Although they themselves may have no grievance, they actually stop work as a formal act of sympathy ordered by their own union. This is approved as coming under the right to strike, although no actual strike by the other unions in the same plant may have been ordered.

Labor unions insist also that, since they represent the majority in a plant, they have the right to demand that all the employees pay dues, and, in some instances, such payments are collected even though a worker may not be a member of the union or subject to its jurisdiction. If, however, such a person refuses to heed a strike call and does cross a picket line, the union's power may indirectly be exerted to force him out of his job.

Congress has been reluctant to review the existing statutes to protect individual rights, and the AFL-CIO this year has been endeavoring to get the National Labor Relations Act amended so that hereafter no state can grant workers the right to refrain from joining a union.

Many a labor-union leader utilizes constantly the "right of dissent" on public questions, and the unions themselves issue protests on various pieces of legislation which they believe to be undesirable. But they feel that, members are concerned, the "right of dissent" should be limited.

One would have to search far nowadays to find any college organization which would start "marches" or "demonstrations" to protect the "right of dissent" for a working man who is subject to drastic punishment by a labor union if he doesn't conform to a majority view. "Minority rights" are non-existent in the labor-union world when it comes to crossing picket lines or engaging in local strikes that are disapproved by a national union.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

TOKYO, JAPAN — Wally kissed the boss of the Geisha house goodnight. This is not done. Japanese kiss in private; very private. A few weeks ago, an actor on Tokyo television almost ruined his career by bussing the heroine at the end of the story. Wally did not know this. So, half full of sake and happy spirits, he grabbed her around the kimono and kissed what looked like a Baldwin piano.

She looked so surprised and pleased, I think she wanted to give him a partnership. It was a dark place up a narrow alley and, inside, it was full of rice-paper walls, pale green screens, tatsumi (mats) and low tables. A proper Geisha house is not sexy. For that matter, neither is Wally.

This was a proper Geisha house where girls in elaborate Japanese costumes executed slow, graceful dances with fluttering fans as an aged lady in a corner plunked that most doleful of all instruments, the samisen. Merely by sitting on the floor, the men in our party broke all arches and kneecaps, pulling tendons that hadn't been patted in twenty years.

Mr. Takahashi, a noted television director, explained the elaborate procedures of geisha, and Mrs. Saito who was born in Seattle with a Nipponese giggle, sat beside me to show me how to use chopsticks without dropping raw fish and cooked seaweed onto the pantaloons.

The ladies hand-fed Gene Kroll and Wally as we proceeded from course to course to course. We had a room to ourselves and the Geisha girls put a gray kimono on me, thrust a ceremonial dagger into the belt, and I went into my act of committing hara-kiri. Kroll danced a pantomime of a baseball game with one of the girls and Mrs. Kroll didn't seem to be surprised when her husband struck out.

Wally kept drinking the sake, although two liver doctors on this around-the-world trip have told him that it's the only part of him that is still growing. Then he filled a drink for his playmate and laughed even when he didn't understand a word she was saying.

Mrs. B. played a few parlor games with the Geisha girls, the music beat faster, the dishes kept coming, the conversation was bright and unintelligible, and Gene Kroll fell off his mat. The dances were exquisite as any I've seen, and Kroll, lying on his right ear, is not to be ignored either.

Mrs. Saito explained that, originally, the Geisha was designed to relax the tired executive. Women guests were not allowed in Geisha houses. Then the American G.I.'s came here, and all the cheap girls along the Ginza began to palm themselves off as Geishas.

The original Geishas were often purchased at the age of five or six, from poor farmers by agents. The arts of grace, poise, dancing, conversation and wit were taught to them by old Geishas. The idea was to divert man's base instincts into bright relaxing ones.

Five years ago, when I was in Tokyo, Mr. Tadoyoshi Yamada, general manager of Yamata Steel and Iron Works, arranged a Geisha party for me in a restaurant on the Sumida River. Mrs. Yamada had to find four retired Geishas, all grandmothers, three of whom were baby sitters for their daughters. But they came out, put on the lacquered black wigs, the rice flour makeup, and made a memorable evening for me.

This time we ate and played games — ever try musical cushions? — and, at late hour, the farewell bowing began. A bow in Japan is deep and is often executed with hands on the knees. The Geishas, the restaurant owner, the lady boss of the girls, all accompanied us down to the lobby where they crouched on their knees.

As the car rolled up to the door, they all bowed their heads again in a silent farewell. It was at this point that Wally Lehmann became a touched. His old happy heart loved them all. So he half-stepped out, looked along the row of young girls and middle-aged ones.

He selected the oldest of the group, a lady with a few lines in her face that matched his, and he lifted her head from his knees. Her dark almond eyes showed surprise at the gentle lift of his hand under her chin. He bent low and kissed her soundly, with all the feeling that a man of 71 can summon.

He broke away quickly. As he hurried into the darkness of the alley, he yelled over his shoulder: "Thanks, Thanks for an evening I will never forget." The woman started into the darkness. She too had an appreciation to express. It was whispered: "Arigato gozaimasu."

In the cab, Wally, clutching his forehead and grinned. "I wanna tell you, kid," he said. "At my age I'm really living."

Drew Pearson Says General Robin Will Be Effective Israeli Ambassador

WASHINGTON — Israel will take a highly significant step in its relations with the United States by appointing General Isaac Rabin, now chief of staff, as ambassador to Washington. He will replace the present popular envoy, Ambassador Avraham Harman.

Behind this move is partly the fact that Ambassador Harman has been in Washington for eight years and is due for a change; also the fact that General Rabin is both a glamorous figure in Israel and somewhat at odds with the present minister of defense, Gen. Moshe Dayan. His transfer to Washington would be a plus for Israel with the American public, also would solve some internal problems in Tel Aviv.

Gen. Rabin is the brilliant strategist who plotted and planned for the defense of Israel in case of an Arab showdown—a showdown which occurred last June. When this column interviewed Rabin in Israel nearly two years ago, he outlined the problems which his nation did face in June.

Gen. Rabin explained that Israel had to depend upon alertness, a highly trained reserve, and its friends abroad to keep armament balanced with the heavily equipped Arab forces. He particularly outlined the danger of fast jet bombers flying from Cairo to Tel Aviv in only nine minutes and from Jordan in four minutes. It was easy to see from his strategy that Israel would have to take the initiative.

Though Rabin had planned this strategy, it was Gen. Moshe Dayan who was transferred over his head to be minister of defense, so got the credit. Dayan is a brilliant tactician but also a politician, and his appointment lined up the aggressive political forces of former Prime Minister Ben-Gurion behind Premier Eshkol.

Since then Dayan has frequently been at odds with Eshkol. At one time it was quite evident that the Israeli army was battering Syria two days after the civilian heads of government had assured the United Nations that fighting had stopped.

Gen. Rabin, as ambassador in Washington, can do an important job for Israel in securing badly needed weapons; and his transfer will also ease some tensions in Tel Aviv.

Humphrey Coup

Last week's victories for Democrats and moderates in the nation's bigger cities can be chalked up as a personal victory for Vice President Humphrey.

Two years ago, when Humphrey appeared at political gatherings with Abraham Beame, Democratic candidate against Rep. John Lindsay for mayor of New York, the Vice President was razed for supporting the wrong man at the wrong time and losing. This fall, however, he stuck his neck out even more—and won.

He trudged the slums of Philadelphia with Mayor James Tate, urging racial tolerance. Last week Mayor Tate surprised all the pollsters by defeating a hard-hitting young Republican (once a Democrat), Arlen Specter.

In Gary, Ind., Humphrey stuck his neck out even further by holding a fund-raising drive for Negro Democrat Gordon Hatcher, bitterly opposed by John Krupa, chairman of the Democratic local committee. Hatcher won.

In Cleveland, Humphrey campaigned for Carl Stokes, the Negro Democrat opposed by Seth Taft, Republican. Stokes won.

Humphrey also went all the way out to San Francisco to throw his support behind Joseph Alioto, the Democratic candidate for mayor, even though one of Humphrey's friends in the House of Representatives, Phillip Burton, had put a third candidate in the race to split the Democratic vote. Alioto won.

In making these campaigns, Humphrey obviously acted with the approval of his chief in the White House, Johnson also went on record in support of Negro and moderate candidates. It will probably cost him votes from the middle class white backlash next year, but he plans to continue his policy of battling for equality of economic and political Negro opportunity.

Oil for Egypt

Ruptured relations between Egypt and the United States haven't prevented Dictator Nasser from maintaining excellent relations with two American oil companies, Standard of Indiana and Phillips Petroleum. He is counting on these U.S. companies to make up for the loss of the Sinai oil fields captured by the Israelis.

Standard of Indiana has joined with the Egyptian government in a joint venture, under the name Pan American Oil, to develop a rich oil field 60 miles south of Cairo. Phillips, in another joint venture, is drilling for oil at El Alamein in the western desert.

Under the Dome

A backstage struggle over the Senate Democratic leadership has already begun in the back rooms, between Senators Ed Muskie of Maine, a Catholic, and Bob Byrd of West Virginia, former member of the Ku Klux Klan. They are getting ready just in case Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield steps down. He has indicated to intimates that he would like to be simply the Senator from Montana again. The liberals privately favor Muskie to replace him, and Southern conservatives are expected to back Byrd.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman has warned Democrats in Congress that they can expect a Republican landslide in the farm belt next year unless inflation is halted.

The Democrats talked to him privately about increasing farm subsidies as vote bait, but Freeman claimed that farmers are most concerned about the high prices they are paying for farm labor and machinery. Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen, who produced the key votes to push the last civil rights bill through the Senate, has been conferring secretly with Southern leaders about blocking another civil rights bill. The Dirksen-Dixiecrat strategy would be to tie up the bill with amendments, each of which could be filibustered by the Southerners for several days.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Another Setback for Bobby

The big thing that happened in the November 7 New York State voting was the way Sen. Robert F. Kennedy again chopped himself down to size. True to form, Bobby's skis fell off at the proud arc of his jump.

It was 1966 all over again. In that national campaign Bobby was billed as the boy everyone needed. The publicity coverage of his candidate-support forays around the country knew no bounds. Our nation rang with reports of RFK's campaign conquest in California, for example, where I was at the moment. Quoting and misquoting Aristotle, Socrates, Demosthenes, Hamlet, Robert Frost and everybody but the Bird Man of Alcatraz, wind-blown Bobby absolutely entranced the whole state, you gathered.

"It was a tremendous gift and lift for Governor Brown," said Kennedy aides. Goodbye, Ronnie Reagan. Reagan won the state by more than a million votes. Bobby turned out to be a bubble.

His publicity in his forays into Florida, Massachusetts, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, etc., was the same—the indispensable man behind any candidate or issue. But on election day, straight across the board and clear across the country, every single man Bobby backed went down the drain. The squealing teen-agers were there, the sycophants were there, some setback intellectuals were there—but where were the voters?

The aging Wunderkind, mafioso-in-chief of the Kennedy clan, sitting on his Matterhorn of parental money, probes his future like the ski jumper who twists his toes and wiggles his stance on the high platform to make sure he has preordained a perfect performance before he makes his leap. And, this time, in New York State, Bobby's leap was an all-out backing of the proposed state constitution, which was overwhelmingly repudiated at the polls.

New York's educational structure was a feature of the proposal and Bobby used his something-for-nothing pitch, which is the main thrust of any RFK campaign.

"Education," he stated, "will be lifted off the people onto the state, where it belongs."

Who is the state? The people are the state. Behind the trick language it's the people, of course, who pay. Demagoguery used unconsciously by such politicians on the make, a cynical technique, deliberate and cold-blooded, and impossible to excuse. Bobby knows better. But he is surrounded by a team of bright young men drilled to guide him in giving the public what it wants without letting them know they're paying for it.

In simple truth, a very large part of the cost of education is due to the New Frontier-Great Society Inflation which Bobby largely ignores, as he does the debts and their enormous costs which political spenders of our money have voted onto the backs of the people.

School construction at about $5 billion this year looks big. It has more than doubled since 1957. But we're building no more school space than 10 years ago. Land costs, building costs, all construction expenses have increased so much in the New Frontier-Great Society inflation that this demon has eaten up the difference.

The same is true of housing starts. Dollar volume they are up from 1957. But deflate these and in physical volume they are down, and far down, since 1957.

This is the payoff on the something-for-nothing political technique that has changed our dollars into dollarets.

In the aftermath of the proposed constitution's 2½-to-1 defeat, Bobby reportedly stated: "You can't win 'em all." All? The only political victory Bobby Kennedy has had since he invaded the Empire State was a hassle about a Surrogate Judge in New York City.

He tried to hand-pick his own candidate for Governor to make his power base secure. In a midnight revolt the nominating convention repudiated Bobby and chose the man (Frank O'Connor) he tried to block.

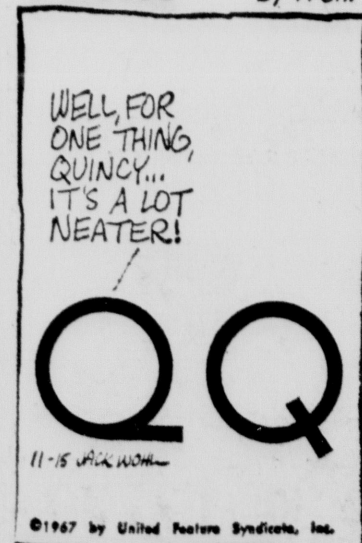

LBJ won New York State by 2.67 million. Bobby was elected Senator by two million fewer votes. He rode in on the coattails of President Johnson. But on election night TV he thanked every ticket mate and all conceivable helpers—except one, Bobby never even mentioned the name Lyndon B.

Meat for the Family

When the House of Representatives voted 403 to 1 the other day for a bill aimed at assuring that all meat will meet Federal standards, it recognized the pervasive use of meat by the American family, and the need that all meat for the family table should be clean, wholesome and unadulterated.

Households in the United States consumed over 32 billion pounds of meat in 1965, the last year for which complete figures are available—equivalent to 166.9 pounds per person per year. When to this is added the 11 pounds of fish and 40.6 pounds of poultry consumed per person per year, the total of flesh, fish and fowl going on the family table in this country is nearly 10 ounces per person per day.

Not for 60 years had there been a major revision of the federal meat inspection law. That became necessary when it was learned that nearly 14 billion pounds of meat are sold each year wholly within states without federal inspection, and in some states with inadequate inspection. Federal inspection covers only meat in interstate trade.

The House bill would provide to states grants of up to half the cost of establishing inspection systems to upgrade inspection to federal standards. This will allow federal agents to inspect plants and scan records on shipments, to cope more effectively with contaminated meat. This is fine as far as it goes.

But good clean meat should know no state lines. The blue stamp of federal standards should guarantee all meat to the consumer. Here is one field where the might of the government should be imposed to assure that there is no contamination and that all meat is palatable, clean and wholesome.

The people should show their interest in this important piece of legislation by demanding that the Senate go further in extending the inspection law to all meat packing plants and to foreign plants exporting meats here.

Reduce Relief Rolls

Most people who give a thought to the mounting relief roll in a country that is in its 81st month of continuous prosperity are as puzzled by it as the officials on federal, state and city levels who struggle with the problem.

That a nation with an unemployment rate of 4 per cent or less has to have 8.4 million people on public assistance dismays the uninformed. The latest verified figures are 3.5 million children, with 1.14 million of their parents and adults taking care of them are so helped, 2 million 65 and older and 500,000 totally disabled and 85,000 blind.

Nationally, two-thirds of the dependent children have been abandoned by their fathers. Their mothers, if they work, must pay someone to look after them, and their pay barely does that. The ability of the rest to get to work is limited by disability.

Obviously, the obscending fathers are the ones who should be found and made to contribute to the support of their children. That is the least restitution they can make. Or they should be taxed and the money paid into a fund for a pool made up by such fathers for all abandoned children.

A recent Governor's conference at Arden House in New York had nothing better to offer than a family payment plan, another welfare plan. Daniel P. Moynihan, director of the MIT-Harvard Joint Center for Urban Studies urged an automatic family allowance for every child of $8 a month for a child under 6, $12 for children 6 to 17. Well off families would pay back much of their allowances through income taxes.

However, he figures the family allowance would cost the country $9 billion a year. The annual cost of public assistance now is $6.5 billion—$3.5 from the federal government, $3 billion from state and local government. What we are looking for is a way to reduce and, eventually, eliminate this burden, not enlarge it. For that problem, the solution is to gradually diminish the size of the population that needs public assistance through education and training, not continued dependency.

The Soviet Union's support of the treaty forbidding nuclear weapons expansion will be meaningless if it furnishes Cuba with a nuclear reactor. Fidel Castro might say he will use it for peaceful purposes, but his sister, Juana, doubts it. So will most of the Latin American governments, who will fear him still more with the means to make nuclear arms.

David Lawrence Says No 'Minority Rights' In Labor-Union World

By DAVID LAWRENCE
WASHINGTON — Much has been heard lately about the "right of dissent," but it becomes apparent that everything depends on whose ox is being gored.
Thus, there are no "demonstrators" or "civil liberties organizations" rising up to support the five members of a labor union in the broad-casting business who insisted on crossing the picket lines of another union, and who now have been fined a total of 46,300 dollars. Likewise, in the automobile industry, officers and members of a local labor union have been threatened with punishment because they refused to recognize the contract made with the Chrysler Corporation by the national union.

Nobody argues or demonstrates in behalf of these individuals that they have a constitutional right to dissent and to work or not to work whenever they please. The sacred "right to strike" has often been defended, but apparently when it is exercised by a local union in defiance of the orders of a national union, then the right to strike is tabooed along with the right to dissent.

There are plenty of "wildcat" strikes from time to time, and these, too, it could be contended, are covered by the "right of dissent." This may be carrying such a doctrine too far, as the damage done can be so extensive that the companies which are the victims of such tactics have often sued unions in the courts when strikes are alleged to have been instigated in violation of a contract.

It isn't too clear, therefore, where the "right of dissent" begins or ends. Certainly labor unions have always insisted that workers had to belong to unions in a shop where the majority chose the union as its bargaining agent. The minority is usually put at a disadvantage because, again and again, employers agree to this demand. Except in states which have "right to work" laws, the federal statute allows unions to obtain contracts that require workers to join a union within 30 days or else lose their jobs. In such instances, to express the "right of dissent" actually means unemployment.

The labor unions have always held to the theory that in a way they are analogous to a governmental organization and should be permitted to exercise disciplinary authority over their members. This is the reason why, when one union goes on strike in a plant, members of the other unions have to respect the picket lines. Although they themselves may have no grievance, they actually stop work as a formal act of sympathy ordered by their own union. This is approved as coming under the right to strike, although no actual strike by the other unions in the same plant may have been ordered.

Labor unions insist also that, since they represent the majority in a plant, they have the right to demand that all the employees pay dues, and, in some instances, such payments are collected even though a worker may not be a member of the union or subject to its jurisdiction. If, however, such a person refuses to heed a strike call and does cross a picket line, the union's power may indirectly be exerted to force him out of his job.

Congress has been reluctant to review the existing statutes to protect individual rights, and the AFL-CIO this year has been endeavoring to get the National Labor Relations Act amended so that hereafter no state can grant workers the right to refrain from joining a union.

Many a labor-union leader utilizes constantly the "right of dissent" on public questions, and the unions themselves issue protests on various pieces of legislation which they believe to be undesirable. But they feel that, members are concerned, the "right of dissent" should be limited.
One would have to search far nowadays to find any college organization which would start "marches" or "demonstrations" to protect the "right of dissent" for a working man who is subject to drastic punishment by a labor union if he doesn't conform to a majority view. "Minority rights" are non-existent in the labor-union world when it comes to crossing picket lines or engaging in local strikes that are disapproved by a national union.

General Robin Will Be Effective Israeli Ambassador

WASHINGTON — Israel will take a highly significant step in its relations with the United States by appointing General Isaac Rabin, now chief of staff, as ambassador to Washington. He will replace the present popular envoy, Ambassador Avraham Harman.

Behind this move is partly the fact that Ambassador Harman has been in Washington for eight years and is due for a change; also the fact that General Rabin is both a glamorous figure in Israel and somewhat at odds with the present minister of defense, Gen. Moshe Dayan. His transfer to Washington would be a plus for Israel with the American public, also would solve some internal problems in Tel Aviv.

Gen. Rabin is the brilliant strategist who plotted and planned for the defense of Israel in case of an Arab showdown—a showdown which occurred last June. When this column interviewed Rabin in Israel nearly two years ago, he outlined the problems which his nation did face in June.

Gen. Rabin explained that Israel had to depend upon alertness, a highly trained reserve, and its friends abroad to keep armament balanced with the heavily equipped Arab forces. He particularly outlined the danger of fast jet bombers flying from Cairo to Tel Aviv in only nine minutes and from Jordan in four minutes. It was easy to see from his strategy that Israel would have to take the initiative.

Though Rabin had planned this strategy, it was Gen. Moshe Dayan who was transferred over his head to be minister of defense, so got the credit. Dayan is a brilliant tactician but also a politician, and his appointment lined up the aggressive political forces of former Prime Minister Ben-Gurion behind Premier Eshkol.

Since then Dayan has frequently been at odds with Eshkol. At one time it was quite evident that the Israeli army was battering Syria two days after the civilian heads of government had assured the United Nations that fighting had stopped.

Gen. Rabin, as ambassador in Washington, can do an important job for Israel in securing badly needed weapons; and his transfer will also ease some tensions in Tel Aviv.

Humphrey Coup
Last week's victories for Democrats and moderates in the nation's bigger cities can be chalked up as a personal victory for Vice President Humphrey.

Two years ago, when Humphrey appeared at political gatherings with Abraham Beame, Democratic candidate against Rep. John Lindsay for mayor of New York, the Vice President was razzed for supporting the wrong man at the wrong time and losing.

This fall, however, he stuck his neck out even more—and won.

He trudged the slums of Philadelphia with Mayor James Tate, urging racial tolerance. Last week Mayor Tate surprised all the pollsters by defeating a hard-hitting young Republican (once a Democrat), Arlen Specter.

In Gary, Ind., Humphrey stuck his neck out even further by holding a fund-raising drive for Negro Democrat Gordon Hatcher, bitterly opposed by John Krupa, chairman of the Democratic local committee. Hatcher won.

In Cleveland, Humphrey campaigned for Carl Stokes, the Negro Democrat opposed by Seth Taft, Republican. Stokes won.

Humphrey also went all the way out to San Francisco to throw his support behind Joseph Alioto, the Democratic candidate for mayor, even though one of Humphrey's friends in the House of Representatives, Phillip Burton, had put a third candidate in the race to split the Democratic vote. Alioto won.

In making these campaigns, Humphrey obviously acted with the approval of his chief in the White House. Johnson also went on record in support of Negro and moderate candidates. It will probably cost him votes from the middle class white backlash next year, but he plans to continue his policy of battling for equality of economic and political Negro opportunity.

Oil for Egypt

Ruptured relations between Egypt and the United States haven't prevented Dictator Nasser from maintaining excellent relations with two American oil companies, Standard of Indiana and Phillips Petroleum. He is counting on these U.S. companies to make up for the loss of the Sinai oil fields captured by the Israelis.

Standard of Indiana has joined with the Egyptian government in a joint venture, under the name Pan American Oil, to develop a rich oil field 60 miles south of Cairo. Phillips, in another joint venture, is drilling for oil at El Alamein in the western desert.

Under the Dome

A backstage struggle over the Senate Democratic leadership has already begun in the back rooms, between Senators Ed Muskie of Maine, a Catholic, and Bob Byrd of West Virginia, former member of the Ku Klux Klan. They are getting ready just in case Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield steps down. He has indicated to intimates that he would like to be simply the Senator from Montana again.

The liberals privately favor Muskie to replace him, and Southern conservatives are expected to back Byrd. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman has warned Democrats in Congress that they can expect a Republican landslide in the farm belt next year unless inflation is halted.

The Democrats talked to him privately about increasing farm subsidies as vote bait, but Freeman claimed that farmers are most concerned about the high prices they are paying for farm labor and machinery. Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen, who produced the key votes to push the last civil rights bill through the Senate, has been conferring secretly with Southern leaders about blocking another civil rights bill. The Dirksen-Dixiecrat strategy would be to tie up the bill with amendments, each of which could be filibustered by the Southerners for several days.

Another Setback for Bobby

The big thing that happened in the November 7 New York State voting was the way Sen. Robert F. Kennedy again chopped himself down to size. True to form, Bobby's skis fell off at the proud arc of his jump.

It was 1966 all over again. In that national campaign Bobby was billed as the boy everyone needed. The publicity coverage of his candidate-support forays around the country knew no bounds. Our nation rang with reports of RFK's campaign conquest in California, for example, where I was at the moment. Quoting and misquoting Aristotle, Socrates, Demosthenes, Hamlet, Robert Frost and everybody but the Bird Man of Alcatraz, wind-blown Bobby absolutely entranced the whole state, you gathered.

"It was a tremendous gift and lift for Governor Brown," said Kennedy aides. Goodbye, Ronnie Reagan. Reagan won the state by more than a million votes. Bobby turned out to be a bubble.

His publicity in his forays into Florida, Massachusetts, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, etc., was the same—the indispensable man behind any candidate or issue. But on election day, straight across the board and clear across the country, every single man Bobby backed went down the drain. The squealing teen-agers were there, the sycophants were there, some wetback intellectuals were there—but where were the voters?

The aging Wunderkind, mafioso-in-chief of the Kennedy clan, sitting on his Matherhorn of parental money, probes his future like the ski jumper who twists his toes and wiggles his stance on the high platform to make sure he has preordained a perfect performance before he makes his leap.

And, this time, in New York State Bobby's leap was an all-out backing of the proposed state constitution, which was overwhelmingly repudiated at the polls.

New York's educational structure was a feature of the proposal and Bobby used his something-for-nothing pitch, which is the main thrust of any RFK campaign.

"Education," he stated, "will be lifted off the people onto the state, where it belongs."

Who is the state? The people are the state. Behind the trick language it's the people, of course, who pay. demagoguery used unconsciously by such politicians on the make, a cynical technique, deliberate and cold-blooded, and impossible to excuse. Bobby knows better. But he is surrounded by a team of bright young men drilled to guide him in giving the public what it wants without letting them know they're paying for it.

In simple truth, a very large part of the cost of education is due to the New Frontier-Great Society Inflation which Bobby largely ignores, as he does the debts and their enormous costs which political spenders of our money have voted onto the backs of the people.

School construction at about $5 billion this year looks big. It has more than doubled since 1957. But we're building no more school space than 10 years ago. Land years ago. Land costs, building costs, all construction expenses have increased so much in the New Frontier-Great Society inflation that this demon has eaten up the difference.

The same is true of housing starts. In dollar volume they are up from 1957. But deflate these and in physical volume they are down, and far down, since 1957.

This is the payoff on the something-for-nothing political technique that has changed our dollars into dollarettes.

In the aftermath of the proposed constitution's 2½-to-1 defeat Bobby reportedly stated: "You can't win 'em all." All? The only political victory Bobby Kennedy has had since he invaded the Empire State was a hassle about a Surrogate Judge in New York City.

He tried to hand-pick his own candidate for Governor to make his power base secure. In a midnight revolt the nominating convention repudiated Bobby and chose the man (Frank O'Connor) he tried to block.

LBJ won New York State by 2.67 million. Bobby was elected Senator by two million fewer votes. He rode in on the coattails of President Johnson. But on election night TV he thanked every ticket mate and all conceivable helpers—except one, Bobby never even mentioned the name Lyndon B.

Vietnam Revolutionary Development Program

How effective is the unheralded war—the war called “pacification”? A distinguished American correspondent discusses this vital question in the third in a series of first-hand reports assessing the realities of the war.

By BOB CONSIDINE

SAIGON — Buried somewhere in bunker-surrounded “Pentagon East,” The U.S. Military and Aid Headquarters recently completed on the edge of attack-prone Tan Son Nhut Airbase, is a computer that keeps the box score on Vietnam’s war-within-a-war.

This quiet and seldom publicized conflict is called the “Pacification” program. It’s black-pajamas troops, if they can be called that, are mostly Vietnamese, men and women, trained and salaried by the U.S. Their mission is peaceful but they are tagged with the bristling title of Revolutionary Development Groups.

There are 470 of them in action, each made up of 59 technicians, skilled and semi-skilled workers.

The computer is so sophisticated that it can print a daily map of South Vietnam showing the number, location and condition of security of this nation’s 12,500 hamlets.

It is from the populations of those rural and remote places that the Viet Cong squeeze the manpower, rice and money they desperately need to pursue their war against the Saigon government and its several active allies.

If we win the shooting war but fail to put over the pacification program and neglect to make straight the path of the revolutionary development groups, we blow our immense investment in blood, bone and billions.

It is as harrowingly simple as that.

The war-within-a-war is not as far along as Gen. William C. Westmoreland’s No. 1 war, the shooting war in which are engaged half a million Americans of all services. There is a breath of a hint that there may be a break of some sort in the war by Christmas, and almost surely by the next U.S. elections. The estimates about the subtler but equally important war are much cloudier.

Had a talk recently with the man in charge of this difficult undertaking. He is Robert W. Komer, formerly of the Central Intelligence Agency, now holder of the title of Gen. Westmoreland’s deputy for civil operations and revolutionary development support. The trim, 45-year-old product of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration has ambassadorial rank in what Robin (the Green Berets) Moore would call “the country team,” our coordinated military-political diplomatic-intelligence delegation to this far-off land.

The computer had just coughed up the day’s map. The box score was not one calculated to impress an innocent bystander.

Of the 12,500 hamlets of Vietnam only 168 were shown to have a Class AAA rating, according to the computer. A Class AAA hamlet has a solid mayor, good local government, adequate defense, and its Viet Cong infrastructure—the enemy underground—has been demolished.

The map showed many more Class BB hamlets.

“They are hamlets with a little less development but just as much security,” Ambassador Komer explained. “Class CCC hamlets, which you can see sprinkled here and there, still constitute something of a threat but have a high degree of government control. Classes DDD and EEE are still strictly contested.” I noticed a class V. The V’s were as thick as a swarm of gnats in An Giang and An Xuyen, the southernmost region of the country, and, also quite prevalent in the Central Highlands.

“They are all VC controlled,” the ambassador said. He said it matter of fact, not with any resignation in his voice.

“We’re winning them over steadily,” he continued. “It baffles us over here to read in some American newspaper, or hear on the air, that we are mired in some gigantic stalemate. We’re not. There’s an incredible intellectual lag afoot at home.”

“The enemy once could move in on a strategic hamlet the day it was completed and either take it over for himself or destroy all that the people had put together with our help. He was in charge. Now we chase him, secure the hamlet and—most important—keep it secured.”

“We’re spending ten times as much money on rural construction and betterment than we did in the days when the original strategic hamlet program was advanced in 1962 and 1963. It’s the best investment we make over here.”

“This is a Vietnamese plan carried out by Vietnamese with our aid. The people of a hamlet liberated from the VC are in no mood to welcome us with open arms. They fear that the VC will come back when we leave and take revenge on all who cooperated. So Vietnam troops are stationed there to maintain security, and then come the revolutionary development groups.

“They wear the black pajamas of the countryside. They speak the language. They have been recruited from that general area, so they have relatives and friends in the hamlet. They bring medicine, food and know-how. They have been trained by us in first air services, have a knowledge of land reform, are proficient in improved methods of farming, and what not.

“They listen to the grievances and aspirations of the people of the hamlet, who may want a bridge, a road to a better market area, a dam behind which to acquire a fishery, a school, a bona fide teacher. We move in the supplies; the local people do the building. The whole program is fortunate in having at its head one of the best men in the country, Maj. Gen. Nguyen Duc Hong, a real whizbang—honest to the core. He spends most of his time in the field.”

The ambassador’s brow furrowed. “But our critics back home seem to feel that as long as there isn’t total security there’s no security at all,” he said. “They don’t seem to sense that it isn’t that the VC can blow up a bridge; it’s how quickly we can repair it.”

“They miss significant trends, too. For example, in 1965 the war was largely in IV Corps, the South. Now half of the enemy activity is in 5 Corps in the North. One half of the enemy is now North Vietnamese, as opposed to hardly 10 per cent in 1965. This means that we’re drying up the enemy in the South; the VC recruitment there has fallen off 50 per cent. We’ve opened 90 per cent of the key roads in daytime, with convoy, and 45 per cent without convoy.

“There are other barometers. In 1965, about 11,000 enemy troops came over to our side, most of them with their weapons. The Vietnamese call them ‘Rallyers’ and do not treat them as prisoners of war. Last year the total was 21,000. As of September first of this year the figure is 22,000. It could go as high as 40,000 by the end of the year.

“Some of these people have gone into revolutionary development work. Some are part of the Kit Carson Scouts, working as counter-guerrillas in the areas they know best. Still others have been formed into armed propaganda teams.

U.S. Air Attacks Only Against Military Targets

Chicago Sun-Times Special WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 —

The Defense Department insisted that U.S. air strikes on North Vietnam are authorized only against military targets.

The Pentagon was asked by the Chicago Sun-Times to comment on an interview with Rennie Davis, director of the Chicago Center for Radical Research, just back from North Vietnam who says that civilian targets are being attacked.

Daniel Z. Henkin, deputy assistant secretary for public affairs, responded: “As we have said many times, all United States air attacks are authorized only against military targets.”

“Never in the history of warfare has such care been taken to avoid civilian casualties and damage to civilian areas. Inevitably there will be injuries and fatalities to civilians and property damage.”

nonmilitary buildings.” Henkin declined to comment on the specifics of Davis’ observations.

The State Department, also was given an advance copy of the Sun-Times interview with Davis but withheld comment.

However, State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey pointed out that on Nov. 1 he had rejected as “non-sense” North Vietnamese claims that the United States was deliberately attacking civilians.

“The policy on targets,” McCloskey said at that time, “remains as it has been—they are military or military-associated targets.”

He conceded, however, that some civilians might be killed “despite all precautions.”

He also complained: “No one seems to pay any attention to the fact that terrorism in South Vietnam leads to a very large number of civilian casualties.”

LBJ Irate, Cracks Down On Blatant Lawbreakers

Curious things have been happening.

Several college professors have openly announced they had helped students evade the draft law. They said they would continue to break the law and were waiting to be arrested. In one case, the university put out a press release on the professor’s actions and stating what a high quality man the university felt he was.

Ultraleft publications have printed instructions on illegal methods of flunking the military’s physical tests for induction (reporting imaginary ailments or pricking oneself and putting a drop of blood in the urine specimen given to the Army doctor). These publications urging flunking of the induction tests have been circulated to the public in open violation of the law.

Demonstrators have publicly attempted to get soldiers to desert while on duty.

Men have publicly burned their draft cards—or turned them in—and invited arrest. College professors have defied the law and gone illegally to North Vietnam. Marchers have wantonly defaced and destroyed public property.

The Justice Department has taken to trial very few of the men and women described above who have asked for arrest. This Justice Department inaction has become a major topic of conversation in Washington groups.

To many people, this government passivity seems curious. If laws are to mean anything, they say, laws must be enforced. If poor laws are on the books they should be eradicated or changed. But a breakdown in law enforcement inevitably results in a breakdown in society.

But there are signs of a change.

The October 21-22 protest march on the Pentagon may have turned the tide.

In the past few weeks, men close to the White House believe they have sensed a rising nationwide resentment against the widespread increase in crime. Specifically, these men believe they have found that the way the march on the Pentagon was carried out stirred up a great deal of revulsion against vulgar violence and blatant, roughshod defiance of the law. The October 21-22 protest march apparently stirred up doubts about an administration that stands by indecisively while the nation’s laws are wantonly disobeyed.

This reporter has been reliably informed that President Johnson’s dander rose after October 21-22. The President is understood to have laid down the law personally to the attorney general. Johnson told the Justice Department head in very strong terms that the federal laws would have to be enforced and blatant lawbreakers curbed.

The President also made clear to his chief law enforcement officer that there would have to be a more determined approach to help states and communities develop effective means of curbing local crime.

TIMELY QUOTES

We must make the man in the street realize he can make Congress do what he wants if he will only speak out.

The argument that you increase interest rates to halt inflation is a fake. There’s nothing to it. High interest rates wiped out at least 500, —Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex.

It would be very difficult for the militants to argue now that the Negro lot cannot be improved through the Democratic system.

Vietnam Revolutionary Development Program

How effective is the unheralded war—the war called “pacification”? A distinguished American correspondent discusses this vital question in the third in a series of first-hand reports assessing the realities of the war.

By BOB CONSIDINE

SAIGON — Buried somewhere in bunker-surrounded “Pentagon East,” the U.S. Military and Aid Headquarters recently completed on the edge of attack-prone Tan Son Nhut Airbase, is a computer that keeps the box score on Vietnam’s war-within-a-war.

This quiet and seldom publicized conflict is called the Pacification program. It’s black-pajamas troops, if they can be called that, are mostly Vietnamese, men and women, trained and salaried by the U.S. Their mission is peaceful but they are tagged with the bristling title of Revolutionary Development Groups.

There are 470 of them in action, each made up of 59 technicians, skilled and semi-skilled workers. The computer is so sophisticated that it can print a daily map of South Vietnam showing the number, location and condition of security of this nation’s 12,500 hamlets.

It is from the populations of those rural and remote places that the Viet Cong squeeze the manpower, rice and money they desperately need to pursue their war against the Saigon government and its several active allies.

If we win the shooting war but fail to put over the pacification program and neglect to make straight the path of the revolutionary development groups, we blow our immense investment in blood, bone and billions.

It is as harrowingly simple as that.

The war-within-a-war is not as far along as Gen. William C. Westmoreland’s No. 1 war, the shooting war in which are engaged half a million Americans of all services. There is a breath of a hint that there may be a break of some sort in the war by Christmas, and almost surely by the next U.S. elections. The estimates about the subtle but equally important war are much cloudier.

Had a talk recently with the man in charge of this difficult

undertaking. He is Robert W. Komer, formerly of the Central Intelligence Agency, now holder of the title of Gen. Westmoreland’s deputy for civil operations and revolutionary development support. The trim, 45-year-old product of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration has ambassadorial rank in what Robin (the Green Berets) Moore would call “the country team,” our coordinated military-political-diplomatic-intelligence delegation to this far-off land.

The computer had just coughed up the day’s map. The box score was not one calculated to impress an innocent bystander. Of the 12,500 hamlets of Vietnam only 168 were shown to have a Class AAA rating, according to the computer. A Class AAA hamlet has a solid mayor, good local government, adequate defense, and its Viet Cong infrastructure—the enemy underground—has been demolished.

The map showed many more Class BB hamlets.

“They are hamlets with a little less development but just as much security,” Ambassador Komer explained. “Class CCC hamlets, which you can see sprinkled here and there, still constitute something of a threat but have a high degree of government control. Classes DDD and EEE are still strictly contested.” I noticed a class V. The V’s were as thick as a swarm of gnats in An Giang and An Xuyen, the southernmost region of the country, and, also quite prevalent in the Central Highlands.

“They are all VC controlled,” the ambassador said. He said it matter of fact, not with any resignation in his voice.

“We’re winning them over steadily,” he continued. “It baffles us over here to read in some American newspaper, or hear on the air, that we are mired in some gigantic stalemate. We’re not. There’s an incredible intellectual lag afoot at home.

“The enemy once could move in on a strategic hamlet the day it was completed and either take it over for himself or destroy all that the people had put together with our help. He was in charge. Now we chase him, secure the hamlet and—most important—keep it secured.

“We’re spending ten times as much money on rural construction and betterment than we did in the days when the original strategic hamlet program was advanced in 1962 and 1963. It’s the best investment we make over here.

“This is a Vietnamese plan carried out by Vietnamese with our aid. The people of a hamlet liberated from the VC are in no mood to welcome us with open arms. They fear that the VC will come back when we leave and take revenge on all who cooperated. So Vietnam troops are stationed there to maintain security, and then come the revolutionary development groups.

mas of the countryside. They speak the language. They have been recruited from that general area, so they have relatives and friends in the hamlet. They bring medicine, food and know-how. They have been trained by us in first air services, have a knowledge of land reform, are proficient in improved methods of farming, and what not.

“They listen to the grievances and aspirations of the people of the hamlet, who may want a bridge, a road to a better market area, a dam behind which to acquire a fishery, a school, a bona fide teacher. We move in the supplies; the local people do the building. The whole program is fortunate in having at its head one of the best men in the country, Maj. Gen. Nguyen Duc Hong, a real whizbang—honest to the core. He spends most of his time in the field.”

The ambassador’s brow furrowed.

“But our critics back home seem to feel that as long as there isn’t total security there’s no security at all,” he said. “They don’t seem to sense that it isn’t that the VC can blow up a bridge. It’s how quickly we can repair it.

“They miss significant trends, too. For example, in 1965 the war was largely in IV Corps, the South. Now half of the enemy activity is in 5 Corps in the North. One half of the enemy is now North Vietnamese, as opposed to hardly 10 per cent in 1965. This means that we’re drying up the enemy in the South; the VC recruitment there has fallen off 50 per cent. We’ve opened 90 per cent of the key roads in daytime, with convoy, and 45 per cent without convoy.

“There are other barometers. In 1965, about 11,000 enemy troops came over to our side, most of them with their weapons. The Vietnamese call them ‘Rallyers’ and do not treat them as prisoners of war. Last year the total was 21,000. As of September first of this year the figure is 22,000. It could go as high as 40,000 by the end of the year.

“Some of these people have gone into revolutionary development work. Some are part of the Kit Carson Scouts, working as counter-guerrillas in the areas they know best. Still others have been formed into armed propaganda teams.

“The cost is peanuts. It costs us $127.12 per Rallyer, as opposed to Sen. Richard Russell’s estimate that the cost of killing one of them in combat works out to something like $300,000. We’ve got the cheapest program in Vietnam. Cumulatively, we’re

Schick Quits Post As Committeeman

John J. Schick, recently defeated in his bid for Ulster County Court Judge on the Democratic Conservative ticket, told The Freeman today that he has resigned from his position as Democratic State Committeeman from the 99th assembly district. The resignation was termed "immediate."

Schick had been elected to the post in June, 1966. It was his first term.

Schick had, in the past expressed much dissatisfaction with Democratic State Chairman John J. Burns, specifically regarding Burns' written request that all Democratic committeemen voice support of the then-proposed State Constitution.

Schick was said to be strong, by exposed to the "package deal" Constitution believing, instead, that the document should have been presented to the voters in the form of varied proposals.

The Kingston attorney, according to informed sources, was believed to also be annoyed about the Burns' leadership and its alleged failure to call state committee meetings on vital issues, thereby depriving elected committeemen of the right to vote on important topics.

This was supposedly done on numerous occasions, say the sources.

Fire Fighters Reach Impasse Over '68 Wages

The Uniformed Fire Fighter's Association, Local 461 announced today that they have reached an impasse with the Board of Fire Commissioners on the 1968 contract requests under the Taylor Act.

Local 461 has requested a meeting with the Public Employment Relations Board concerning the 1968 contract requests and hopes that the meeting will be granted immediately because time is a major factor due to the budget date. The members of Local 461 felt that the salary structure offered was inadequate.

The Kingston Fire Department is the lowest paid fire department in the Mid-Hudson Valley, and Local 461 feels that the time has come to update the salary structure, it was pointed out.

Bernard Kilgore Dies; Ex-Wall St. Journal Head

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Bernard Kilgore, who used his bent for finance and flair for lively writing to build the Wall Street Journal into a nationwide daily for the general business community, died Tuesday at the age of 59.

Kilgore, who went to work for the WSJ when he was fresh out of college and rose to president, died at his home here after an illness of more than a year.

In March, 1966, he retired as president of the newspaper and of Dow Jones & Co. Inc., which publishes the paper, and was elected chairman of the board of Dow Jones.

Pepped Up Style

When Kilgore became managing editor of the Wall Street Journal in 1940, it had a circulation of 30,000 and it had a reputation for stodginess although it was held in high regard in financial circles.

The combined circulation of the paper's four regional U.S. editions has climbed to about 990,000—second only to the New York Daily News.

Kilgore did it by making his own flair for lively writing a standard for the paper, pepping up the paper's style, broadening its news coverage and making it appeal to the average businessman as well as the financial expert.

National and world news summaries and interpretive and feature stories are printed in the front page. For years, many of the WSJ's spot news stories and background articles have been good reading for many persons who would have a hard job defining what a debenture is.

The Wall Street Journal sometimes had as many as 30 reporters and writers assigned to

First as Copywriter

Kilgore joined the staff of the WSJ as a copywriter in New York when he was just out of DePauw University in 1929. At the age of 21, three months after he started with the paper, he was sent to San Francisco as news editor of a West Coast edition. "They needed someone in a hurry, and I was just out of college and easy to ship," he recalled later.

He quickly developed a knack of financial writing. In 1933, he went back to New York to write a column on financial trends. Three years later, he was made head of the Wall Street Journal's Washington bureau.

In addition to his WSJ work, Kilgore published six weekly newspapers in New Jersey—the Princeton Packet, the state's oldest weekly, and the Central Post, the Windsor-Heights Herald, the Franklin News-Record, the South Somerset News and the Manville News.

Dow Jones & Co. Inc. publishes Barron's magazine, the National Observer and Dow Jones books and operates the Dow Jones News Service, in addition to publishing the Wall Street Journal.

Schick Quits Post As Committeeman

John J. Schick, recently defeated in his bid for Ulster County Court Judge on the Democratic Conservative ticket, told The Freeman today that he has resigned from his position as Democratic State committeeman from the 99th assembly district.

The resignation was termed "immediate."

Schick had been elected to the post in June, 1966. It was his first term.

Schick had, in the past expressed much dissatisfaction with Democratic State Chairman John J. Burns, specifically regarding Burns' written request that all Democratic committeemen voice support of the then proposed State Constitution.

Schick was said to be strongly opposed to the "package deal" Constitution believing, instead, that the document should have been presented to the voters in the form of varied proposals.

The Kingston attorney, according to informed sources, was believed to also be annoyed about the Burns' leadership and its alleged failure to call state committee meetings on vital issues, thereby depriving elected committeemen of the right to vote on important topics.

This was supposedly done on numerous occasions, say the sources.

Find Lost Woman

Patricia DeJesus, 24, daughter of Edward Smith of Creek Locks, was returned to Kingston Hospital last night after escaping from the detention room Monday night. The woman was reportedly found in the Cedar Street area. She had been admitted to the hospital Sunday suffering from hysteria.

Drivers Pay $90 in Fines

Kingston police charged eight drivers with speeding last night, four of whom paid a total of $90 in fines this morning in city court before Judge Hubert A. Richter.

Fined $50 was Russell Aronis of RD 2, Box 10, Kingston. George Schultz of Syracuse was fined $20 and had his license suspended for 60 days. Nelson Lewis of 27 Brewster Street paid a $10 fine as did George Madison of St. Albans, Queens.

Two cases were held over for the purpose of obtaining counsel. Robert Steele of Stamford, Conn. and Edward Noonan of Lakeview Avenue.

Not appearing were Loretta Doolittle of 29 James Street, Rosendale and Joseph Candrilli of West Park.

The case of Michael Cecelia of 56 Sycamore Street and Bernard Kearney of Lucas Avenue Extension, accused of first degree robbery, were put off until Nov. 22. The pair is represented by Robert Schirmer. They were remanded to the Ulster County Jail. They stand accused of stealing a television set Nov. 9.

Fire Fighters Reach Impasse Over '68 Wages

The Union Fire Fighters Association, Local 461 announced today that they have reached an impasse with the Board of Fire Commissioners on the 1968 contract requests under the Taylor Act.

Local 461 has requested a meeting with the Public Employment Relations Board concerning the 1968 contract requests and hopes that the meeting will be granted immediately because time is a major factor due to the budget date.

The members of Local 461 felt that the salary structure offered was inadequate.

The Kingston Fire Department is the lowest paid fire department in the Mid-Hudson Valley, and Local 461 feels that the time has come to update the salary structure, it was pointed out.

Ray Going To Mayors' Parley

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan will attend a meeting of the New York State Conference of Mayors at the Summit Hotel in New York City, Friday.

Garraghan, recently appointed to the Steering Committee of the conference, will once again offer his proposals for a sewer fee. His proposal was rejected by the recent constitutional convention. Garraghan said he has hopes of approval by the influential Mayors' Conference which would then recommend a sewer fee to the state legislature.

Bernard Kilgore Dies; Ex-Wall St. Journal Head

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Bernard Kilgore, who used his bent for finance and flair for lively writing to build the Wall Street Journal into a nationwide daily for the general business community, died Tuesday at the age of 59.

Kilgore, who went to work for the WSJ when he was fresh out of college and rose to president, died at his home here after an illness of more than a year.

In March, 1966, he retired as president of the newspaper and of Dow Jones & Co. Inc., which publishes the paper, and was elected chairman of the board of Dow Jones.

Pepped Up Style

When Kilgore became managing editor of the Wall Street Journal in 1940, it had a circulation of 30,000 and it had a reputation for stodginess although it was held in high regard in financial circles.

The combined circulation of the paper's four regional U.S. editions has climbed to about 990,000—second only to the New York Daily News.

Kilgore did it by making his own flair for lively writing a standard for the paper, pepping up the paper's style, broadening its news coverage and making it appeal to the average businessman as well as the financial expert.

National and world news summaries and interpretive feature stories are printed in the front page. For years, many of the WSJ's spot news stories and background articles have made good reading for many persons who would have a hard job defining what a debenture is.

The Wall Street Journal sometimes had as many as 30 reporters and writers assigned to

First as Copywriter

Kilgore joined the staff of the WSJ as a copywriter in New York when he was just out of DePauw University in 1929. At the age of 21, three months after he started with the paper, he was sent to San Francisco as news editor of a West Coast edition. "They needed someone in a hurry, and I was just out of college and easy to ship," he recalled later.

He quickly developed a knack of financial writing. In 1933, he went back to New York to write a column on financial trends. Three years later, he was made head of the Wall Street Journal's Washington bureau.

In addition to his WSJ work, Kilgore published six weekly newspapers in New Jersey—the Princeton Packet, the state's oldest weekly, and the Central Post, the Windsor-Heights Herald, the Franklin News-Record, the South Somerset News and the Manville News.

Dow Jones & Co. Inc. publishes Barron's magazine, the National Observer and Dow Jones books and operates the Dow Jones News Service, in addition to publishing the Wall Street Journal.

Anti-American Fomenters Roam Berlin Campus Built With U.S. Dollars

By HUBERT J. EBB
Associated Press Writer
BERLIN (AP) — Leftist students at the Free University of West Berlin, which was founded with American financial help, are fomenters these days of anti-American demonstrations.

U.S. involvement in Vietnam is high among targets of various protests and marches organized by a small but tightly organized group at the university. This is in marked contrast to the strongly pro-Western stance taken two decades ago when students and professors established the school to protest a Communist takeover of East Berlin's Humboldt University. The Free University was marked from the start by a democratic approach to student participation in student affairs. The leftist dissidents have managed to win support from various circles outside their ideological sympathizers. This has been achieved not only on such issues as the Vietnam war, but also on protests against a visit of the Shah of Iran, subsequent charges of police brutality against demonstrators, and on the more academic issue of reform in university facilities, studies, methods. One professor has charged that the movement strives to control the university. By university count, some 50 faculty members supported a leftist-oriented dissident students' attempt to found what they call a "critical university," with groups to air student protests as well as to provide an avenue for action. This development brought out a widespread opposition from the normally politically uncommitted majority student vote to operate mass within the established university. The "critical university" founders agreed to a December referendum. It will decide whether the "critical university" will have the backing of a majority student vote to operate within the established university. The result of the vote could be crucial in determining whether university authorities will be able to avoid another confrontation with the dissidents.

Anti-American Fomenters Roam Berlin Campus Built With U.S. Dollars

BY HUBERT J. ERB
Associated Press Writer

BERLIN (AP) — Leftist students at the Free University of West Berlin, which was founded with American financial help, are fomenters these days of anti-American demonstrations.

U.S. involvement in Vietnam is high among targets of various protests and marches organized by a small but tightly organized group at the university.

This is in marked contrast to the strongly pro-Western stance taken two decades ago when students and professors established the school to protest a Communist takeover of East Berlin's Humboldt University.

The Free University was marked from the start by a democratic approach to student participation in student affairs. The leftist dissidents have managed to win support from various circles outside their ideological sympathizers. This has been achieved not only on such issues as the Vietnam war, but also on protests against a visit of the Shah of Iran, subsequent charges of police brutality against demonstrators, and on the more academic issue of reform in university facilities, studies methods.

One professor has charged that the movement strives to control the university.

By university count, some 50 faculty members supported a leftist-oriented dissident students' attempt to found what they call a "critical university."

The "critical university" founders agreed to a December referendum. It will decide whether the "critical university" will have the backing of a normally politically uncommitted mass within the established university.

The result of the vote could be crucial in determining whether university authorities will be able to avoid another confrontation with the dissidents.

Hails Freezing Technique in Cancer Treatment

Dramatic reductions of pain and symptoms of inoperable cancers of the head and neck have been achieved at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary through the intense cold of cryosurgery by a former Kingstonian.

75 Pct. Show Improvement

Dr. Daniel Miller, surgeon in charge of the tumor clinic and son of Mrs. Morris Miller and the late Mr. Miller of 243 Broadway, has treated 50 patients during the past 15 months with 75 per cent showing marked improvement.

Because his work is still primarily experimental, Dr. Miller makes no claims about cryosurgery's future possibilities. However, he is confident it will prove efficient in destroying some cancers.

Cryosurgery, super-cold used in place of the traditional doctor's knife, basically uses a hollow tube filled with liquid nitrogen at minus 196 degrees centigrade that freezes the tumor and destroys the cells.

Possibilities Enormous

While ordinary surgery might take hours, cryosurgery can be performed in minutes without pain and little bleeding. Its possibilities are enormous.

Dr. Miller, who graduated from Kingston High School, presently is instructor in otolaryngology at Harvard Medical School and assistant clinical professor at Tufts Medical School, feels eventually this freezing technique will be utilized in the treatment of all cancers. He notes that 98 per cent of skin cancers have been cured when cryosurgery has been used.

Since practiced only 15 months there is as yet no way to know what the cure potential is, says Dr. Miller. Once scientists have more experience and evidence, he is hopeful cryosurgery will go far beyond the mere relieving of symptoms for at least some cancers.

Dr. Miller resides in Boston with his wife, the former Rosie Myersberg and their three sons.

Hanoi and Cong Antiwar Hopes Seen in Release

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Vietnamese Communist gestures with regard to their American captives illustrate a shift in propaganda emphasis over the past 16 months and suggest that both Hanoi and the Viet Cong are investing hopes in the antiwar movement in the United States.

In July 1966, after more than a year of air attacks on North Vietnam and heavy use of American air power in the South, Hanoi and Viet Cong propaganda threatened vengeance against captured U.S. crews, even hinting broadly at public war crimes trials.

Now the stress is on humane treatment. The Viet Cong, for example, has just released three prisoners who, according to Communist sources in Cambodia, will represent the beginning of a "trickle" if the Communists are satisfied with news stories about the three.

The Communists have had little success so far from attempts to make propaganda capital of statements attributed to captive U.S. airmen. The statements attributed to them have been, for the most part, read by others in the prisoners' names, in English-language broadcasts. This leaves the authenticity of the statements open to question.

Sixteen months ago the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong insisted that all captured airmen, as Hanoi put it, "are not prisoners of war and cannot enjoy the provisions of the Geneva Convention of 1949 on the treatment of prisoners of war." This hinted that captives might be publicly tried and executed.

Citing the trials of Nazi leaders at Nuernberg, Germany, Hanoi said captive Americans could "by no means claim to be free from responsibility as far as criminal law is concerned; neither can they claim to be mere instruments who act only as ordered out of respect for military discipline."

"They are in fact war criminals," said Hanoi. "They are not prisoners of war. The American pilots are but pirates, saboteurs and criminals. That is why they may be tried for crimes against the security of this country."

At about the same time, Hanoi broadcast a proposal to the Viet Cong in the South that it "set up a court to try and appropriately punish those American pilots who owe blood debts to our people."

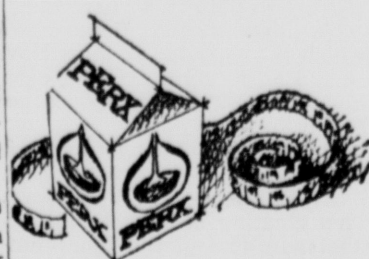

For about a week in that period Hanoi broadcast alleged depositions of U.S. prisoners condemning the U.S. government and "begging forgiveness." The statements sounded as if produced by the same hand. Hanoi reported captives were paraded through the streets amid demonstrations against them.

The "war crimes trial" line was dropped rather abruptly in the summer of 1966 and not used again. For months thereafter the Communists occasionally broadcast names and ranks of captive Americans and, at times, statements attributed to the prisoners. Seldom in recent months have these statements gone beyond expressing surprise at the effectiveness of Communist defenses or matter-of-fact accounts of how the prisoner was captured.

Motorcycles

It has been estimated that motorcycle registrations will total 2,190,822 in the United States by the end of 1967. This is an increase of 438,000 over the 1,752,801 registered in 1966. These figures include all motorcycles, motor bicycles and motor scooters — most states do not separate them in their records.

Drew Pearson Admits Errors, Suit Withdrawn

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — A $3-million libel suit against Washington columnist Drew Pearson has been withdrawn by former Congressman John R. Pillion of nearby Lakeview.

Pearson stipulated in papers filed in U. S. District Court here Tuesday he was in error in two instances concerning a column he wrote about Pillion in 1964.

The papers said that Pillion has shown satisfactorily that his surname has always been Pillion, and that the former Congressman was not designated to attend President John F. Kennedy's funeral and therefore did not fail to attend it.

A total of 100 House members were picked by House Speaker John McCormack to attend on a seniority basis. Pillion was not one of them, the papers said.

Pillion discontinued the suit on the basis of the retractions.

The Democratic Club of Woodstock will hold its monthly meeting Thursday at Deane's at 8 p. m.

John O. Bonilla, Town Democratic Chairman, will head a panel discussion conducted by the Democratic candidates in the recent election. The topic will be Results of the Election and Plans for the Future.

Other business to be considered is that of election of officers at the December meeting and plans for a fund-raising dinner in January.

The Democratic Club meets every third Thursday of the month and sponsors other social events during the year. All meetings are open to the public, and newcomers in the area are particularly invited to attend.

Woodstock Fire Company at a recent meeting heard a report of Chief Duncan Wilson who stated that there were 61 fire alarms to date this year.

He announced a fire school which is scheduled to start Nov. 18 and a fire commissioner election Dec. 5 at the firehouse between 8 and 10 p. m.

An election of department officers will also take place Dec. 7 at Company 2, Wittenberg. This election is open to all active members of the four companies. The meeting will begin at 8 p. m.

Captain Bruce Reynolds reported equipment purchased with funds realized in a recent drive has arrived. He also stated that local Boy Scouts will be responsible again this year for the marking of fire hydrants in the village in order to make finding them in the snow easier.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, Nov. 15, the 319th day of 1967. There are 46 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1777, the Continental Congress approved the Articles of Confederation, the country's governing document until the Constitution went into effect.

On this date:

In 1492, Christopher Columbus noted in his journal the use of tobacco among the Indians. It was the first recorded reference to tobacco.

In 1806, Pike's Peak in Colorado was discovered by the explorer Zebulon Montgomery Pike.

In 1920, the Assembly of the League of Nations held its first meeting in Geneva, Switzerland.

In 1935, Manuel Quezon was inaugurated as the first president of the Philippines' Commonwealth.

In 1948, William L. Mackenzie King retired as prime minister of Canada after serving more than 21 years.

Ten years ago—The U.S. Air Force announced that a missile launched from Cape Canaveral (now Cape Kennedy), Fla. had delivered a simulated hydrogen warhead on target, 5,000 miles away with unprecedented accuracy.

Five years ago—President John F. Kennedy appointed Christian A. Herter to a new post as special representative for trade negotiations.

One year ago—The U.S. Gemini 12 space craft splashed down southeast of Cape Kennedy after four days in space. The two astronauts were in good shape.

'Golden Peninsula'

People of India call Burma the "golden peninsula" because of its fertile soil, endless forests, minerals, gems and, above all, living space for much greater population than the estimated 25 million people living there.

The final meeting of the 1967 season of the Woodstock Garden Club was held recently in the parish hall of St. Gregory's Church with the president, Mrs. S. Brainard West presiding.

The civic beautification unsolicited awards were announced as follows: first award for commercially located business, The National Bank of Orange and Ulster Counties. First award for home located business—The Lasher Funeral Home. Honorable mention, Bradley Meadows Plaza, Colonial Pharmacy, Rotron Manufacturing Company, Woodstock Liquor Store, Woodstock Garden Center, Folk Art, Mitz's Beauty Shop, Roman Yard, Beardsville Post Office, Dr. E. Tomaselli, and Rudolph Gallery.

Mrs. Florence Saqui, planting chairman, reported that the spring blooming bulbs have been planted around the War Memorial.

Officers elected for the 1968 season are Mrs. Harry Schmidt, president, Mrs. Craig Vosburgh, vice president, Mrs. O. S. Marquardt, treasurer, Mrs. G. E. Wehlann, recording secretary, and Mrs. Ethel D. Bradshaen, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. West presented the club with a plaque of the club seal designed and made by artist, John Pike.

Mrs. Ernest Muller, vice-president presented Mrs. West a gift from the officer. Tea was served by Miss Florence Hubbard and Miss Terese Kessel.

Britain Mulls Plan to Solve Mideast Rift

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Britain hopes to pry loose the Middle East logjam with a formula that would not only win approval of the U.N. Security Council but have "some practical effect on the ground."

An Argentine informant said a new Latin American resolution would also be presented to the 15-nation council and claimed it has strong support.

The council already has before it a U.S. resolution and a rival draft sponsored by India, Mali and Nigeria. All four proposals would send a special U.N. representative to the Middle East to assist in working toward a settlement.

A British informant said his government "does not see any point in winning a voting victory in the council" unless it can make a positive contribution to a lasting settlement in the Arab-Israeli conflict.

He said more time is required before the British resolution will be ready for submission. Some delegates expressed belief, however, that introduction of the Latin American draft might prod the British into quicker action, even if it meant putting in amendments to one of the other resolutions rather than a resolution of their own.

Israel has rejected the Indian draft as pro-Arab and prejudicial to its cause. The Arab states have said the U.S. draft is unacceptable.

The Latin American proposal links a call for withdrawal of Israeli forces from Arab territory to termination of the Arab state of belligerency against Israel.

Move to Expel Troublemakers At Wilberforce

WILBERFORCE, Ohio (AP)

Officials at the predominantly Negro Central State University—scene of violent rioting—moved today to weed out what they call organized Black Power elements on campus.

School officials confirmed that some radical students may be expelled.

Central State President Harry Groves ordered the school closed until after the Thanksgiving holidays following Monday night's rioting that resulted in 94 arrests.

Most students had left the campus by Tuesday night, but armed National Guard troops patrolled the campus amid intermittent snow and rain.

Highway patrolmen and Greene County sheriff's deputies sealed off the university, setting up five checkpoints at campus gates.

Though the rioting was touched off by the expulsion of one student, university officials say a Black Power movement is involved.

"We're going to clean that (Black Power) thing out and this gave us the opportunity," said John H. Bustamonte, chairman of the school's board of trustees, commenting on the rioting that resulted in the hospitalization of one highway patrolman and damage to campus dormitories.

"It is not just something to be shoved aside and dealt with as a normal student demonstration," Bustamonte added.

Contacted at his home in Cleveland, Bustamonte said that campus Black Power advocates were a "well financed, highly organized disciplined group."

The rioting was triggered by the expulsion last week of Mike Warren, a 23-year-old student from Cleveland. Central State officials accused him of threatening the life of Rembert Stokes, president of Wilberforce University, another predominantly Negro school here.

Those arrested are scheduled to appear in municipal court at nearby Xenia today. Most are charged with disorderly conduct.

Move to Expel Troublemakers At Wilberforce

WILBERFORCE, Ohio (AP) — Officials at the predominantly Negro Central State University—scene of violent rioting—moved today to weed out what they call organized Black Power elements on campus.

School officials confirmed that some radical students may be expelled.

Central State President Harry Groves ordered the school closed until after the Thanksgiving holidays following Monday night's rioting that resulted in 94 arrests.

Most students had left the campus by Tuesday night, but armed National Guard troops patrolled the campus amid intermittent snow and rain.

Highway patrolmen and Greene County sheriff's deputies sealed off the university setting up five checkpoints at campus gates.

Though the rioting was touched off by the expulsion of one student, university officials say a Black Power movement is involved.

"We're going to clean that (Black Power) thing out and this gave us the opportunity," said John H. Bustamonte, chairman of the school's board of trustees, commenting on the rioting that resulted in the hospitalization of one highway patrolman and damage to campus dormitories.

"It is not just something to be shoved aside and dealt with as a normal student demonstration," Bustamonte added.

Contacted at his home in Cleveland, Bustamonte said that campus Black Power advocates were a "well financed, highly organized disciplined group."

The rioting was triggered by the expulsion last week of Mike Warren, a 23-year-old student from Cleveland. Central State officials accused him of threatening the life of Rembert Stokes, president of Wilberforce University, another predominantly Negro school here.

Those arrested are scheduled to appear in municipal court at nearby Xenia today. Most are charged with disorderly conduct.

Westy, Chiefs Expected to Oppose Pause in Bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Westmoreland is expected to stand fast against a proposal for an extended pause in U.S. bombing of North Vietnam, Pentagon sources say.

The perennial bombing pause is to be reviewed at this week's high-level conferences.

Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Vietnam, is due here today to join Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, in discussions with President Johnson and top officials of the Defense and State departments.

Pentagon sources said there are no urgent issues at this time — nothing in the way of new troop increase requests or logistic or operational problems. The conferences were billed as a general review.

The meetings come at a time when the Johnson administration appears to be stressing the theme of "steady progress" in the Vietnam war.

Bunker used this phrase on his arrival Friday from Saigon. High U.S. military officials followed up with a similar line Saturday in talking to newsmen, although they did predict hard questions on the list of matters fighting in certain critical areas.

In other war-related developments,

Retired Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin said his recent trip to Vietnam convinced him the administration plans to keep forces in Southeast Asia for a long time.

Gavin, a persistent war policy critic, said the government pictures its purpose in Vietnam as resisting current aggression while in fact its policy is the long-term containment of Red China.

California Gov. Ronald Reagan attacked Johnson's war policies, called for a clear policy decision on "whether we want to carry the war through to a conclusion, or give up" and said stopping U.S. bombing of the North "will only encourage the enemy to do his worst."

The Republican governor, speaking Saturday night in Albany, Ore., said U.S. war policy in Vietnam from the start "was a case of being too late with too little, while tipping our hand to the enemy so that he always knew in advance what we proposed."

—Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said in a Chicago speech, "The '68 elections will be a vote on Vietnam. It is clear the question will not be settled in the Senate or in Congress. We must take it back to the jury."

McCarthy said he hoped other senators who oppose administration war policies will enter presidential primaries next year. He said he won't announce until about Dec. 15 if he plans to oppose Johnson for the Democratic nomination.

—Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., predicted Johnson may ask Congress next year for a pre-election vote of confidence in his Vietnam policies.

—Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said he believes the American public is wearying of the war. Fulbright, one of the Senate's most outspoken war policy critics, said he feels public support is growing for his position.

The bombing pause question was pushed to the forefront again over the weekend when President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam announced his country's forces would observe a 24-hour cease-fire over Christmas, and possibly the New Year and the lunar new year as well.

Scouts Continue Drive

The Rip Van Winkle Boy Scout council is looking for a continuation of public support of Scouting in its annual campaign now under way in nine Ulster County towns and all of Greene County.

"This campaign is vital to obtain the operating funds we need for 1968," said Oliver Tweedy, council president, "and continued public support is vital if we're going to maintain our quality Scouting program."

He said the council will close this year with a new high in boy membership and added that record attendance was set last summer at Camp Tri-Mount, operated by the council.

The campaign is being conducted in all of Greene County and in nine towns in Ulster County outside the area covered by the Community Chest drive. Included are the Towns of Olive, Shandaken, Gardiner, Lloyd, Marlboro, Plattekill, Rochester, Shawangunk and Wawarsing.

Goal Is $15,000

The campaign goal is $15,000. These funds are needed for council operating expenses for 1968 to provide for various council services for 110 Scouting units with a boy membership of 3,200.

Services performed by the council include maintenance of the Boy Scout Service Center in Kingston; operation of Camp Tri-Mount in Greene County which has year-round camping and training programs, and leadership training.

Other services include field service to about 80 local organizations which sponsor scouting units in Ulster and Greene Counties; program services to unit leaders; promotion of council and district activities including field days and camporees and organization of new units to offer the Scouting program to more boys.

Austin Named VP At Paltz College

Dr. LeRoy S. Austin, dean of students at State University College, New Paltz, was named today as vice president for student affairs by the board of trustees of the State University of New York. Dr. John H. Jacobson, acting president of the New Paltz college, said today.

Dr. Austin came to New Paltz as dean of students in the fall of 1965 from Pennsylvania State University where he was associate dean of men.

In his position, he will supervise directors of admissions, health services, counseling, housing, placement, student affairs, and other activities for the over 5,000 full and part-time student population expected next year.

Prior to his Penn State post, Dr. Austin was acting dean of students at Pratt Institute from 1956 to 1959; and from 1953 to 1956, he served as director of student personnel at Quinnipiac College, Conn., where he was also assistant professor of psychology.

He received the Bachelor of Science from the University of Tulsa in 1946, a Master of Business Administration from the University of Michigan in 1947, and the Doctorate in Education from Teachers College, Columbia University, in 1960.

He is a graduate of Tulsa Central High School, Oklahoma, class of 1940.

Paltz Faculty To Hear Guest On Taylor Bill

Dr. Israel Kugler, president of the American Federation of Teachers College and University Council will address the faculty of the State University College at New Paltz Thursday 8 p. m. on collective bargaining by state employees. The address will be given in the main building auditorium on campus.

Now holding the twin posts of president of the United Federation of College Teachers, and president of the newly formed New York State College and University Council of the American Federation of Teachers, Dr. Kugler has long been active in developing professional unions among college teachers. His address will present the case for recognition of a union of college teachers as the logical choice for bargaining agent under the provisions of the Taylor Bill, which grants collective bargaining privileges to State employees.

To Attend Banquet

An Ellenville member of the Socialist Labor Party, Nathan Pressman, will attend the annual Thanksgiving banquet Saturday night at the Henry Hudson Hotel, New York City, for the benefit of the Weekly People, official publication of the party.

The master of ceremonies will be former Woodstocker, Walter Steinhilber whose cartoons appear in the Weekly People.

Guest speaker will be Joseph Pirincin of Ohio, Socialist Labor Party candidate for mayor of Cleveland in the recent election.

Justice James Chase was the first U.S. Supreme Court justice to face impeachment proceedings, in 1804. The Senate acquitted him.

Testing for Diabetes

Diabetes is chiefly a condition of the middle and older age groups. As many as one out of every 15 persons between the ages of 65 and 75 may have it. This statement was made today by Mrs. John Ostrander, chairman of the Ulster Chapter of the New York Diabetes Association. The drive is currently being planned to persuade everyone to be tested for diabetes, no matter what his or her age.

The fact that more older people become diabetic than younger ones need not be disheartening to senior citizens, according to Mrs. Ostrander. "The fact is," she said, "that diabetes is usually much milder and easier to control in older people than it is in those under 40." She went on to state that most people who have diabetes can live more satisfying lives once they know about their condition and control it, no matter what their age.

Free testing clinics have been set up at Benedictine Hospital and Kingston Hospital. At the Benedictine Hospital today and at Kingston Hospital Thursday, Friday and Saturday—from 2 to 4 in the afternoon and 7 to 9 at State Health Department.

Community and Synagogue Service Will Be Recognized

DR. JOSEPH JACOBSON

Hundreds of local and out-of-town residents are expected to pay tribute to Dr. Joseph Jacobson at a testimonial dinner Sunday night.

The fete is in recognition of his years of service to the community and to his synagogue, Congregation Agudas Achim.

The event, sponsored by the synagogue, is set for 6 p.m. Sunday at the Granit Hotel, Accord.

Outstanding Tribute

The 100-year-old congregation has held few such tributes in its long history, but committee spokesmen noted that the honor to be paid to Dr. Jacobson seems uniquely fitting. His parents, the late Max and Yetta Jacobson, were members of Agudas Achim; the ark that holds the Torah scrolls in the synagogue building is dedicated to their memory. Despite the demands of a busy surgeon, Dr. Jacobson still finds time to be present once a week at the 7 a.m. minyan that must be formed so that morning prayers may be recited.

Dr. Jacobson was graduated from Ulster Academy, predecesor to Kingston High School, New York University and Jefferson Medical College. In 1925 he began his association with the late Dr. George F. Chandler and became attending surgeon at Kingston Hospital. He has also been on the staff of Benedictine Hospital since 1927.

He has been consultant to the Ellenville and Greene County hospitals; surgeon at Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital and Seaview Hospital; and was assistant clinical professor at New York Medical College. He is a fellow of the American College of Surgeons and has been named honorary professor by the oldest medical college in the Western hemisphere, the University of Santa Domingo.

During World War II he served in the U. S. Navy. One committee member assisting with plans for Sunday's dinner recalls being stationed at Fort Hamilton and hearing "stories of heroic proportions about a Naval surgeon working himself to exhaustion at St. Alban's." The surgeon was Joe Jacobson. Main speaker at Sunday's testimonial will be Judge Isadore Bookstein, retired Judge of the Supreme Court of New York State. Also giving brief tributes will be Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan; Rabbi H. Z. Rappaport of Agudas Achim; Dr. Frederick W. Holcomb Sr., representing the Ulster County Medical Society; George Rusk, Dr. Jacobson in college; Isaac president, Kingston Savings Bank; Alfred D. Ronder, president and David Barnovitz, synagogue secretary. Toastmaster will be C. Willentz, who roomed with Agudas Achim.

No Tax Increase This Time: Dirksen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen predicts President Johnson's proposals for a tax hike, crime control legislation and a civil rights bill won't clear Congress this session.

But he said they appear the only doubtful finishers in a round dozen major administration proposals he indicated Republicans will help pass before quitting until next year.

Sees Dec. 15 Window

Dirksen told a news conference Tuesday he thinks Congress can wind up the session Dec. 15 if the members will be "good boys and stay on the job." He said he would push for a delay of the next session's opening until mid-January in that case.

Although he would not say if he would join in it, Dirksen forecast a Senate filibuster if the civil rights bill is brought up. The measure would outlaw the use of force to prevent the exercise by minorities of federally-guaranteed civil rights.

Dirksen repeated his earlier assertions that the House-passed bill is one-sided because it would protect only minorities and not all citizens. He said it probably could not pass the Senate in its present form even if there were no filibuster.

Democratic Leader Mike

Mansfield has delayed any final decision but has indicated he may let the measure go over until next year.

A crime control bill the administration originally wanted now is on its blacklist because of wire-tapping and other amendments tacked onto it by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee.

Dirksen said action on it is doubtful.

Doubts House Action

The Republican leader made clear he doesn't think there will be final action in this session on import-curbing bills. President Johnson has threatened to veto Dirksen said the Senate may act on a proposal to limit textile imports but expressed doubt the House would be willing to take it up.

Johnson appears to have little if any chance of getting action on his proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge, Dirksen said. He added he agrees with House Republican leaders that there is no support among the people for any kind of tax increase at this time.

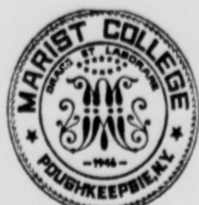

But he said the prospect for other administration measures seemed bright.

Dirksen listed among these antipoverty, educational, meat inspection, Social Security, foreign aid, military construction, public works, postal rate pay, military pay and juvenile delinquency measures.

Lottery Sale Ban Attacked

WASHINGTON (AP) — A desperate and apparently futile effort was underway in Congress today to continue federally insured banks as sales outlets for the New York State lottery.

U.S. Rep. Samuel S. Stratton launched Tuesday a delaying action against a bill that would forbid federally insured banks to sell lottery tickets.

Stratton was spurred by the fact that his state counts on federally insured banks to provide about 60 per cent of the lottery outlets.

On Monday, the Senate endorsed the legislation virtually the same as it had won House passage earlier.

Stratton made his move after the Senate acted. When the author, Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking Committee, asked the unanimous consent to approve the Senate amendments, and sent the bill to the White House, Stratton refused.

Later, Patman sought consent to route the bill to a Senate House conference and Stratton objected, Patman still can push the measure to a House vote, but the process will take longer.

Patman, who condemned the New York lottery almost from its birth, said he would take the lengthier course, involving action by the banking or rules committee.

Stratton zeroed in on Patman with a charge that "this is a bad bill."

The Amsterdam, N.Y., Democrat told the House that neither he nor his district had backed the lottery, which was intended to help produce school aid money, but that New Yorkers generally had approved it overwhelmingly.

Meanwhile, in Albany, the State Tax Department produced this bright note today:

Lottery ticket sales passed $6 million during October, for the best monthly showing since the first sales in June.

October total was $6,021,395.

That was nearly a quarter of a million dollars above September's sales of $5,795,545 but emotionally short of the $30-million - a month projected by the department before June.

June still remains the best sales month. The total then hit $6,447,695.

Charting the general destination of the proceeds, the department said $3,311,767 would go to education, with $2,207,844 earmarked for local school districts and $1,103,922 ticketed for the state's general fund to be used for educational purposes.

Here is how the October sales stacked up against the September receipts—on a regional basis, with the September figures in parentheses:

New York City, $4,040,003 ($3,827,551); Long Island, $560,833 ($599,157); Westchester, $562,998 ($511,610); Albany, $235,451 ($241,143); Utica, $69,835 ($73,596); Binghamton $73,181; ($73,878); Syracuse, $79,277 ($84,149); Rochester $79,624 ($88,384); Buffalo, $320,193 ($296,374).

In the background of the sales report was a congressional move toward final approval of a bill to bar federally insured banks from selling lottery tickets.

Noted Labor Columnist Is Area College Guest

Victor Riesel, the labor columnist, will be the guest speaker tonight at Dutchess Community College.

Speaking on Inside Labor Unions, Riesel will appear under the sponsorship of the Evening Students' Association. The public is invited to the presentation, which will take place in the Dutchess Hall Lounge at 8 p.m.

He will also talk to day students and faculty Thursday afternoon.

Covering labor news, Riesel established his reputation by exposing racketeers and Communists who have milked legitimate unions, businessmen, the public and the government. Several years ago, his enemies endorsed the effectiveness of his exposes when a hoodlum stepped up to him and flung acid in his eyes. He was not silenced, however, for his coverage of labor, political, and industrial development continues in a syndicated column appearing daily in over 300 papers.

RVCS Student Will Attend Atom Conference

Clyde B. Marshall, a senior at Rondout Valley Central School at Stone Ridge is one of three Mid-Hudson Valley students selected to attend the 1967 National Youth Conference on the Atom in Chicago this month.

The student is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Marshall, Accord.

According to Central Hudson

Gas and Electric Corporation, the Youth Conference is designed to present to a group of the nation's most able science students and teachers an authoritative and inspiring view of the peaceful atom and to help advance interest in the study of science in the United States.

The Youth Conference is sponsored annually by the nation's electric utility industry and is attended by more than 700 students and teachers from throughout the country.

Mr. Marshall will be accompanied by his science teacher, Mr. Armand Decker, of Kerhonkson. The Rondout Valley delegation will be accompanied by student-teacher representatives from Newburgh and Wappingers Falls.

Mr. Marshall was selected from among 20 high school nominees who wrote essays on "The Peacetime Uses of the Atom."

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Since I take two kinds of pills every day, I carry the bottles in my purse so I am always sure to have them with me.

To keep from digging through my purse in search of them, I put the two small bottles into an inexpensive plastic cigarette case. And the little space on the side that is supposed to carry matches is just right for a tin of aspirin.

Now my medicine is all together and easy to find, and I never worry about the pills spilling.

Mrs. Wayne Inman

Dear Heloise:

Did you ever try frying bacon and draining it on some pieces of bread, then freezing the bread and using it later for dressing?

The bacon grease really adds a tasty flavor to turkey dressing.

Mrs. Gene Beckman

Dear Heloise:

I have a suggestion for the mothers of small children who complain about the task of sorting the many pairs of identical socks of varying sizes.

I made three nylon net bags with different colored drawstrings and hung them on the inside of the closet door. I have each child put his soiled socks in his own bag.

When wash days come, I just pull the drawstring tightly and tie. Then toss (as is) into the washer and on into the dryer.

No sorting or confusion later as to which ones belong to whom.

Bernice Bradford

Dear Heloise:

I've found a use for the third-class advertising mail we're all deluged with these days.

Possibly all families aren't like mine, but the demand for a piece of writing paper has never ended since the children were age three or four and starting to scribble with a pencil.

The whole family uses the so called "junk mail" for phone messages, notes to one another, and, of course, mother's grocery list.

We keep a whole stack in a shoe box in a convenient place, and our supply is endless.

Darlene Stephens

Dear Heloise:

Why do you continually use the words "you all" when you know it's incorrect English?

Schoolteacher

It must have started a few years before I was born.

The words "you all" are used six times in the Book of Philipians of the Bible. You can find them in Chapter I, II and IV. In fact, one of the latest dictionaries which I just received contains this expression.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

We use a pointed-top mustard container (the squeeze-top), and have found that the easiest way to transfer mustard to it from the large jar is by using a baster.

RVCS Student Will Attend Atom Conference

Clyde B. Marshall, a senior at Rondout Valley Central School at Stone Ridge is one of three Mid-Hudson Valley students selected to attend the 1967 National Youth Conference on the Atom in Chicago this month.

The student is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Marshall, Accord.

According to Central Hudson

Gas and Electric Corporation, the Youth Conference is designed to present to a group of the nation's most able science students and teachers an authoritative and inspiring view of the peaceful atom and to help advance interest in the study of science in the United States.

The Youth Conference is sponsored annually by the nation's electric utility industry and is attended by more than 700 students and teachers from throughout the country.

Mr. Marshall will be accompanied by his science teacher, Mr. Armand Decker, of Kerhonkson. The Rondout Valley delegation will be accompanied by student-teacher representatives from Newburgh and Wappingers Falls.

Charles E. Moehrke, Central Hudson Public Relations Representative, will serve as host for the Youth Conference delegates.

The Central Hudson delegation will fly to Detroit on Nov. 27. The following day the delegation will visit the Enrico Fermi Nuclear Power Plant and then fly to Chicago to take part in the Youth Conference. The group will return to the Mid-Hudson Valley on Dec. 1.

During the Youth Conference, the local delegates will have an opportunity to meet many of the nation's leading scientists, learn about progress in the development of the atom, and take part in lectures, group discussions and field trips.

Mr. Marshall was selected from among 20 high school nominees who wrote essays on "The Peacetime Uses of the Atom."

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise: Since I take two kinds of pills every day, I carry the bottles in my purse so I am always sure to have them with me.

To keep from digging through my purse in search of them, I put the two small bottles into an inexpensive plastic cigarette case. And the little space on the side that is supposed to carry matches is just right for a tin of aspirin.

Now my medicine is all together and easy to find, and I never worry about the pills spilling.

Mrs. Wayne Inman

Dear Heloise: Did you ever try frying bacon and draining it on some pieces of bread, then freezing the bread and using it later for dressing?

The bacon grease really adds a tasty flavor to turkey dressing.

Mrs. Gene Beckman

Dear Heloise: I have a suggestion for the mothers of small children who complain about the task of sorting the many pairs of identical socks of varying sizes.

I made three nylon net bags with different colored drawstrings and hung them on the inside of the closet door. I have each child put his soiled socks in his own bag.

When wash days come, I just pull the drawstring tightly and tie. Then toss (as is) into the washer and on into the dryer.

No sorting or confusion later as to which ones belong to whom.

Bernice Bradford

Dear Heloise: I've found a use for the third-class advertising mail we're all deluged with these days.

Possibly all families aren't like mine, but the demand for a piece of writing paper has never ended since the children were age three or four and starting to scribble with a pencil.

The whole family uses the so called "junk mail" for phone messages, notes to one another, and, of course, mother's grocery list.

We keep a whole stack in a shoe box in a convenient place, and our supply is endless.

Darlene Stephens

Dear Heloise:

Why do you continually use the words "you all" when you know it's incorrect English?

Schoolteacher

It must have started a few years before I was born.

The words "you all" are used six times in the Book of Philipians of the Bible. You can find them in Chapter I, II and IV. In fact, one of the latest dictionaries which I just received contains this expression.

..... Heloise

Dear Heloise: We use a pointed-top mustard container (the squeeze-top), and have found that the easiest way to transfer mustard to it from the large jar is by using a baster.

The Doctor Says

Perspire Profusely?
Use More Salt, Water

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

Q—A 16-year-old is troubled with excessive sweating of her hands. She takes five hand towels to school with her every day. Her doctor says nothing can be done for her but that she may outgrow it. What causes this condition? Do you know of any treatment for it?

A—Persons who sweat excessively are usually very high-strung. They will not outgrow this but in time they may learn to relax and take the ordinary stresses and frustrations of life more calmly. Meanwhile, this girl may want to try one of the over-the-counter antiperspirants. Since some work better than others for certain persons, she should try several and see which one helps her most.

The prescription drug, phenoxymethylamine (Dibenzylamine), or one of several belladonna products, taken under medical supervision, may help her.

Q—When I sweat a lot at work, now many salt tablets should I take? Or should I just increase my table salt?

A—If you perspire profusely in your work or your sports you will need to replace both the salt and the water lost. The best way to do this is to drink water to which salt has been added in the proportion of ¼-teaspoonful to a quart.

Q—in the treatment of psoriasis, do the advantages of Methotrexate outweigh the disadvantages? Is the drug used internally?

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of The Freeman. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

It is recommended for only the severest cases of psoriasis when they fail to respond to other forms of treatment. It should not be used by persons who are taking other drugs, who have an infection or liver disease. It is available only on a doctor's prescription and must be taken under close medical supervision. In about 75 percent of those on whom it is used it keeps the disease under control but does not cure it.

The regular Sabbath foods will be prepared by several mothers of USY members, under the supervision of Mrs. Harry Z. Schechtman, wife of the Rabbi who is sponsoring this project. Pictured are (l-r) Mrs. Alan Bush, chairman of the mothers' committee; Mrs. Schechtman; Mrs. George Small. Other committee members are Mrs. Leonard Hershoff and Mrs. Sidney Treinkman. Rabbi Schechtman will direct the traditional prayers and hymns. The event will begin at 5:30 p. m. in the auditorium. At 8 p. m. the group will adjourn to the synagogue for Friday evening religious services. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST of the Emily Post Institute

STEP-PARENTS MUST CLEAR UP NAME CONFUSION

Dear Mrs. Post: When parents have remarried and accompany their children to meetings, is there a way to avoid the embarrassment of being called by the step-child's name? How should children introduce their step-father without emphasizing the fact that he is not their father by name? My husband refuses to attend most school functions, and I believe I've determined the root of the problem. The children and I would greatly appreciate the benefit of your assistance.—"Grateful Mom."

Dear "Grateful Mom:" There is nothing whatsoever wrong with correcting a person who calls you by an incorrect name. First, your child should be taught to introduce her step-father as "my stepfather, Mr. Jones." By the tone of her voice she can imply every bit as much affection as if he were her father. There is no other way that teachers who do not have access to the child's records can be expected to know the name or relationship.

Married Bridesmaids Perfectly Permissible

Dear Mrs. Post: Recently my husband and I were asked to be in his sister's wedding party, and we accepted. But the mother of one of the bridesmaids said it wouldn't be proper because we are married and have two children (we are 20 years old). Now she refuses to let her daughter be in the wedding party. Is it right for us to take part?—Beverly J.

Dear Beverly: It is unusual for both husband and wife to be attendants, but there is no rule against it. The woman who objects is making a fuss about nothing, and is undoubtedly doing much to spoil the bride's pleasure in making her wedding plans.

Single Letter Monograms

Dear Mrs. Post: On stationery which has a single letter for a monogram, does a woman use the first letter of her first or last name?—E. S.

Dear Miss S.: She uses her last name initial. The only exception to this rule is in the case of a ready-made initialed handkerchief, which may, if preferred, carry the first name initial. However, stationery is a less personal item, and the last name initial is correct.

Will Meet Thursday

The Ladies Auxiliary of East Kingston Fire Department will hold a regular monthly meeting Thursday at 8 p. m. at East Kingston Firehouse. After the meeting a social hour will be held. All members of the fire district are invited to attend.

Guest Says Grace to Himself

Dear Mrs. Post: I would like to know if it's proper to ask the host to say grace if the household is not accustomed to saying it, or should you bow your head and say it silently?—John R.

Dear John: If the household is not accustomed to saying grace, the chances are that the host would not even know one, and would be non-plussed by the request. Bow your head and say your grace silently.

What is your most puzzling etiquette problem? To the sender of the most interesting question that we receive each week we'll send a free copy of Emily Post's Etiquette. The question chosen, and its answer will be published in this column every Friday. Send your question to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper, and don't forget to include your name and address.

The Mature Parent

By MURIEL LAWRENCE
(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: Our 16-year-old girl has had her brown hair bleached and dyed a strawberry blond that makes her look like a hussy. What has upset her father and me is that she had it done secretly so that we couldn't forbid it. I've tried to explain that it's the influence of all these TV commercials about hair dye. But my husband feels that her disregard of us could be the beginning of more dangerous rebellion.

ANSWER: You're torturing yourselves, you know, by applying the word "rebellion" to the child's decision to change her hair color. Sure you are. Your choice of this word is torturing you with its threat of Lord knows how many other imaginary defiance, future rebellions including anything from illegitimate babies to experiments with LSD.

Whereas the actuality is that your child has used this change of hair color, not to defy you, but to declare her hope of someday taking control of all her decisions, of her own life. Good gracious, you don't want to spend the rest of your lives making decisions for her, do you?

Now let me propose that your "upset" feelings all really boil down to one feeling—sadness. For us, children's adolescence is primarily a time of sadness. It's filled with a million little "goodbyes" to us that we don't recognize. Our 16-year-old daughter, instead of consulting us on a change of hair color, says "goodbye" to old dependence on our supportive approval. Instead of joining us for a family birthday dinner, our teen-aged son takes his girl to a drive-in movie. What occurs to us is a sadness piled up and up by those million little "goodbyes" which are preparing us for the final BIG GOODBYE between us and the children we love.

It's awfully important to name our feelings accurately. Otherwise, we're only too apt to misjudge it as irritation and resentment.

There's nothing to do about our sadness. We can not move time backwards to the precious lost days of their childhoods when we served as substitutes for God Almighty. But at least we can know we wish we could and are sad because we can't.

Legion Post 1298 23rd Card Party Thursday Night

Town of Esopus American Legion Post 1298 will hold its 23rd annual card party Thursday night beginning at 7 p.m. in the Post Home, Legion Court, Port Ewen.

Commander William Prendergast told The Freeman today, "This card party is one of the highlights of our social calendar at Post 1298. We've mailed out patron tickets to various businesses in the Port Ewen area and Kingston. We would appreciate replies being mailed back to the Legion Post Home before Thursday."

Prendergast said funds derived from the card party will be used to further the traditional aims of the American Legion which include aid to veterans and child welfare.

The Port Ewen post has an outstanding record in the area of child welfare, having won the district award for five consecutive years. This year's award was won under the chairmanship of past-commander Edgar Maurer.

The card party is open to Legionnaires and their guests. Prizes have been donated by local businessmen and patrons.

Thirty-three area schools participated in the day's events, which included contests in the following areas: Drama, Speaking, French, Social Sciences, History, Biology, Chemistry, Physics, Education, Business and Mathematics.

Third place winners in Mathematics and recipients of certificates from the college were: David Lee, Mark Grazier, Robert Henderson, Maureen Ryan, and Bruce Rubin. All of the above students are presently 10th grade students.

The following students also placed among the first 10 positions: 4th place: John Buoymaster, Roger Duke, and Terence Tougas. 5th place: Eva Howland and Mark Haverstroh. 6th place: Bill Eichhorn. 7th place:

Tina Anderson, George Alspina, Katherine Crost, and Linda Van de Bogart. 8th place: Jeanne Goddard. 9th place: Kendra Kintner, Dot Knickmyer, Ann Swenson. 10th place: Deborah Sutt, Sheila Umphrey, Charlene Carlson and Sandra Torre.

This is not only an indication of the caliber of students, but also indicates the quality of education offered in our school system. The students are to be highly praised for their excellent performance at Cobleskill."

It was also announced by Bernie Stahl, business department chairman, that Miss Rowena Wilber finished 5th out of 219 contestants in the advanced typing contest.

Feudalism began to appear about the mid-800s, reached its heights in the 1200s and had almost vanished by the end of the 1400s.

Long Gallops, 60-Yard Pass Game Features

So you think girls don't know what to do with a football? Well, listen to how the girls of Tri Hi and Hi Y handled the oblate spheroid in their annual run for the roses at Dietz Stadium.

It took a string of heroics to give the YWCA's Tri Hi ladies a 13-7 squeaker over the YMCA's Hi Y. We say squeaker because the winning TD was scored only seconds before the final gun. Make that whistle! The Tri Hi and Hi Y have a firm rule against firearms on the field.

It all happened like this: On the first play after the kickoff, Sally Goffredi streaked 70 yards from the Tri Hi 30 on a gallop that would have done credit to Red Grange or O. J. Simpson. Then Sally calmly faded back and passed to Jenny Murray for the extra point and a 7-0 Tri Hi lead.

55-Yard Gallop

In the second quarter, Jean Lown of Tri Hi took a handoff, cut for the sidelines and skirted more than 50 yards to the 5 yard line. Before the Hi Ys could grab their collective breaths, Candy Canning, the swimming star, bolted over from the 5 on a double reverse, no less for the second TD and a 13-0 lead for Tri Hi.

The Associated Press report did not identify who passed off to Jean and failed to note who missed the extra point.

Late—very late—in the fourth quarter, the Hi Ys scored their only touchdown on a beautiful 60-yard pass play from Jackie Schechter to Sue Ellsworth. Miss Ellsworth grabbed the pass in the midst of a host of Tri Hi defenders and made like Homer Jones the rest of the way. Jackie then swept right end for the extra point and the game ended 13-7 in favor of Tri Hi.

Male Officials

Officiating was a trio of well known local sports figures—Jules Albertini, Tony Valle and Ronnie Valle.

Koenig, Perry To Attend Fete For Dan Cunha

A Navy Tight Spot Calls for a Church

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

"Whenever we get in a tight spot and need a few points we go to Church," says Navy football coach Bill Elias. "Some wag might say we are the most religious football team in the nation."

Of course, Elias and the rest of the U.S. Naval Academy football team actually mean John Church, their sure-footed field goal and placement kicker from Foster Village, Hawaii.

After the Middies' first six games this fall, upperclassman Church became Navy's top point scorer over the last two seasons with 49 points.

The 6-foot, 190-pound John Henry Church Jr. last fall kicked 14 straight conversions and two field goals for Navy.

This year, going into the final four games, he led the team in scoring with 29 points on 11 of 12 extra points and six field goals in eight attempts.

John Church's right foot this season has given the Middies men two of their first four victories. Against Penn State, a 23-22 victory, John kicked a 25-yard field goal and two extra points. Against Syracuse he made eight points in a 27-14 victory that just about eliminated the Orange from the Eastern championship. Both of his field goals in that game sailed 42 yards.

Against Pitt his 32-yard field goal in the last four minutes won the game 22-21.

"When you play a schedule like we do, you need a good field persate. I looped a string around my front cleat and tied it around my ankle. The ankle is fine now but that little change has given me better distance and accuracy on my kicks," Church says his job is a lonely one.

"On the road we have meetings for the offensive line, meetings for quarterbacks, meetings for defensive backs, but nobody ever has a meeting for the kicker. I usually go off on the side and look for an interesting story teller."

Church wears size 10½ C shoes, but when he puts on his right football shoe it's size 8½.

"The tight shoe puts my toes right up against the leather when contact is made. It was pretty tight at first but the shoe has stretched a little now."

Southern Cal NFA Jayvees Over UCLans Rap Kingston

NEW YORK (AP)—When college football follows form, even Aunt Martha can pick the winners. But why does she always take her vacation at this time of year?

Last week's average was .774, lifting the seasonal average to .731.

Southern California over UCLA: Gary Beban, UCLA's magician who plays quarterback, pulled his miracle of the year in the opener at the expense of Tennessee. This time it will be O. J. Simpson of the Trojans who performs the miracle and takes his team to the Rose Bowl.

Tennessee over Mississippi: This one will be played on a neutral field in Memphis and that will be the only neutral thing in the area. Dewey Warren, possibly the best passer in the conference, will decide it for the Volunteers.

Purdue over Michigan State: Would you believe that the Spartans will be dropping their fifth in a row?

Indiana over Minnesota: Why should those hungry Hoosiers start a losing streak this late in the season?

Texas El Paso over Wyoming: The heat and linebacker Dennis Carr will get to the previously unbeaten Cowboys.

Oklahoma over Kansas: There was doubt early in the season about the Oklahoma's offensive line. There isn't anymore.

Oregon State over Oregon: The margin will be so great that Mike Haggard the Beavers' field goal kicker won't be needed.

Notre Dame over Georgia Tech: Midseason injuries have ruined the Georgia Tech attack. In contrast, everyone in the Irish line-up is healthy.

North Carolina State over Clemson: The Wolves are solid through the middle with Dennis Byrd and Terry Brookshire two of the league's better defensive players.

Alabama over South Carolina: Kenny Stabler's southpaw passing decides.

Army over Pittsburgh: Down through the years Army never has won in Pittsburgh. The Cadets will this time and will wind up going to a bowl.

Michigan State began its first Big Ten basketball season in the fall of 1950 with a 53-52 victory over Northwestern.

NFA Jayvees Rap Kingston

Newburgh Free Academy's Jayvee gridders trounced Kingston, 33-7, Tuesday to close the season for the locals. Coach Ron Cole's gridders went 1-7.

The only KHS score came in the third quarter when Bill Brady threw 20 yards to Gary Bellows to cap a 70 yard drive. Fumbles and pass interceptions aided the junior Goldbacks.

Kingston lineup: Ends—Bel-lows and Reinhardt; tackles—Mayone and Guido; guards—White and Primo; center—Ross; quarterback—Brady; fullbacks—Wynkoop and Faerber; full-back—Kochigan.

Score by quarters:
NFA Jayvees 13 7 6 7—33
KHS Jayvees 0 0 7 0—7

Finding Bulls to Fight U.S. Matador's Problem

MADRID, Spain (AP) — In Spain the toughest trick for a Yankee bull-fighter is finding a bull to fight.

A dashing type named Sidney Franklin was the first, back in 1932.

"I'd like to fight more," said Short, who at 6-foot-2 is just about the tallest Matador hereabouts. He shrugged, "I'm an outsider. I'm an American."

Short, the tall Matador, fights as John Fulton, Spaniards find his family name difficult to pronounce and they might in frustration end up yelling exclusively for "toro" the bull.

So, this Yankee artist who is hooked on bulls starts off with two handicaps when he strides out on the sand for death in the afternoon: He's Yankee and he's timber-tall.

"When you're tall it's easier to look clumsy out there," he said.

Short is a painter who fights bulls or a bull-fighter who paints pictures—take your pick. He paints a lot more bulls than he kills but balances things a bit by painting many of his bulls in the blood of the animals.

It's a technique dating back to the cave man, according to Short's public relations writer.

The soft-spoken Pennsylvanian has fought twice this year, once in Sevilla and the second time when he confirmed his rank as Matador in Madrid. He has had three exhibitions of his paintings in Spain — putting painting one up.

He'll even the score at Houston, Texas, in February but after all the danger he went through to become a "killer" of bulls, the fight in Houston's Astrodome will be bloodless. The bulls leave alive.

This complicated dual life of juggling palette and sword began when at 13 he saw Tyrone Power in the movie, "Blood and Sand." After that he caught up with Ernest Hemingway's "Death in the Afternoon" and he was hooked by the bulls, figuratively speaking.

This was 200 bulls ago when a Spanish barber in Philadelphia used to use his hair-trimming cloth to illustrate various twirls of the cape.

The first of this long line of slain bulls went down in 1953 in San Miguel Allende, Mexico. A few score bulls later he decided Mexican promoters were giving out a lot more "ole" than cold cash, so he came to Spain.

On July 18, 1963, he became the second American to reach Matador in Spain in the ring at Sevilla. Among his kills there was one bull weighing 1,267 pounds, one of the largest in a decade.

Long Gallops, 60-Yard Pass Game Features

Well, listen to how the girls of Tri Hi and Hi Y handled the oblate spheroid in their annual run for the roses at Dietz Stadium.

It took a string of heroics to give the YWCA's Tri Hi lassies a 13-7 squeaker over the YMCA's Hi Y's. We say squeaker because the winning TD was scored only seconds before the final gun. Make that whistle! The Tri Hi and Hi Y have a firm rule against firearms on the field.

It all happened like this: On the first play after the kickoff, Sally Goffredi streaked 70 yards from the Tri Hi 30 on a gallop that would have done credit to Red Grange or O. J. Simpson. Then Sally calmly faked back and passed to Jenny Murray for the extra point and a 7-0 Tri Hi lead.

55-Yard Gallop
In the second quarter, Jean Lown of Tri Hi took a handoff, cut for the sidelines and skirted more than 50 yards to the 5 yard line. Before the Hi Y's could grab their collective breaths, Candy Canning, the swimming star, bolted over from the 5 on a double reverse, no less for the second TD and a 13-0 lead for Tri Hi.

The Associated Press report did not identify who passed off to Jean and failed to note who missed the extra point. Late—very late—in the fourth quarter, the Hi Y's scored their only touchdown on a beautiful 60-yard pass play from Jackie Schechter to Sue Ellsworth. Miss Ellsworth grabbed the pass in the midst of a host of Tri Hi defenders and made like Homer Jones the rest of the way. Jackie then swept right end for the extra point and the game ended 13-7 in favor of Tri Hi.

Male Officials

Koenig, Perry To Attend Fete For Dan Cunha

Frank Koenig and Mike Perry of Kingston will be among those attending the Siena College Sports Night Thursday at Herbert's Restaurant, Albany.

Dan Cunha, who coached the upstate school to its greatest heights in basketball, will be honored at the event and will be formally inducted into the school's Hall of Fame. Many of Siena's outstanding players, most of whom played under Cunha at Siena, are expected to attend the event.

A Navy Tight Spot Calls for a Church

By FRANK ECK

AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor
"Whenever we get in a tight spot and need a few points we go to Church," says Navy football coach Bill Elias. "Some wag might say we are the most religious football team in the nation."

Of course, Elias and the rest of the U.S. Naval Academy football team actually mean John Church, their sure-footed field goal and placement kicker from Foster Village, Hawaii.

After the Middies' first six games this fall, upperclassman Church became Navy's top point scorer over the last two seasons with 49 points.

The 6-foot, 190-pound John Henry Church Jr. last fall kicked 14 straight conversions and two field goals for Navy.

This year, going into the final four games, he led the team in scoring with 29 points on 11 of 12 extra points and six field goals in eight attempts.

John Church's right foot this season has given the Midshipmen two of their first four victories. Against Penn State, a 23-22 victory, John kicked a 25-yard field goal and two extra points. Against Syracuse he made eight points in a 27-14 victory that just about eliminated the Orange from the Eastern championship. Both of his field goals in that game sailed 42 yards.

Against Pitt his 32-yard field goal in the last four minutes won the game 22-21.

"When you play a schedule like we do, you need a good field goal kicker like John Church," says Coach Elias. "We use him every chance we get when we are stalled in good field position. Last year he almost made a 51-yard three pointer against Duke. The ball hit the crossbar."

Church, whose father skips one of three research ships belonging to the University of Hawaii, racked up 24 straight conversions until he missed against Pitt. But later he made the winning points.

"It's hard to understand how Church kicked that 32-yarder against Pitt," says Elias. "The Panthers came within inches of blocking it."

As a sophomore Church kicked in Navy's intramural league. He believes he kicked a near field goal almost 60 yards one evening in the Annapolis fog. Last fall he won the varsity field goal job after the third game.

"The first day back this fall," says Church, "I did a little too much kicking and pulled a muscle in my right ankle. The injury made it difficult for me to lock my ankle on kicks. To compensate, I looped a string around my front cleat and tied it around my ankle. The ankle is fine now but that little change has given me better distance and accuracy on my kicks."

Church says his job is a lonely one.

"On the road we have meetings for the offensive line, meetings for quarterbacks, meetings for defensive backs, but nobody ever has a meeting for the kicker. I usually go off on the side and look for an interesting story teller."

Church wears size 10½ C shoes, but when he puts on his right football shoe it's size 8½.

Southern Cal NFA Jayvees Over UCLans Rap Kingston

NEW YORK (AP)—When college football follows form, even Aunt Martha can pick the winners. But why does she always take her vacation at this time of year?

Last week's average was .774, lifting the seasonal average to .731.

Southern California over UCLA: Gary Beban, UCLA's magician who plays quarterback, pulled his miracle of the year in the opener at the expense of Tennessee. This time it will be O. J. Simpson of the Trojans who performs the miracle and takes his team to the Rose Bowl.

Tennessee over Mississippi: This one will be played on a neutral field in Memphis and that will be the only neutral thing in the area. Dewey Warren, possibly the best passer in the conference, will decide it for the Volunteers.

Purdue over Michigan State: Would you believe that the Spartans will be dropping their fifth in a row?

Indiana over Minnesota: Why should those hungry Hoosiers start a losing streak this late in the season?

Texas El Paso over Wyoming: The heat and linebacker Dennis Carr will get to the previously unbeaten Cowboys.

Oklahoma over Kansas: There was doubt early in the season about the Oklahoma's offensive line. There isn't anymore.

Oregon State over Oregon: The margin will be so great that over Northwestern.

Newburgh Free Academy's jayvee gridders trounced Kingston, 33-7, Tuesday to close the season for the locals. Coach Ron Cole's gridders went 1-7.

The only KHS score came in the third quarter when Bill Brady threw 20 yards to Gary Bellows to cap a 70 yard drive. Fumbles and pass interceptions aided the junior Goldbacks.

Kingston lineup: Ends—Bellows and Reinhardt; tackles—Mayone and Guido; guards—White and Primo; center—Ross; quarterback—Brady; halfbacks—Wynkoop and Faerber; fullback—Kachian.

Score by quarters:
NFA Jayvees 13 7 6 7—33

State's Targia 2nd in SUNY

Misses First By One Goal

Angelo Targia of State University New Paltz, the early season pace setter, fell behind Bill Garvery of Plattsburgh in the final statistics in the State University Athletic Conference.

Garvery finished with 9 goals and two assists, while Targia, a fast starter, collected 7 goals for second place, one ahead of Werner Kluefer of Oneonta. Two other Hawks—Pete Kane and Clem M'Badinui—scored three goals each.

Buffalo State has taken the 1967 SUNYAC soccer title by virtue of a 2-1 victory over Cortland State. The Orangemen ran right down to the wire with Oneonta which had led the team standings into the next to final week only to suffer a 4-2 loss to Brockport College. The loss opened the door for Buffalo and the ensuing win over Cortland gave them the title.

Buffalo becomes the ninth Conference champion since the onset of league play in 1959, with this being the first title for Coach Fred Hartwick and his fine club. Coach Fred Holloway of Cortland holds the distinction of having won five SUNYAC titles. His teams won in 1959, 60, 62, 63 and 64. Brockport won in 1961 and New Paltz and Oswego won it in 1965 and 1966, respectively.

The New Paltz Hawks dropped to eighth place with a 2-4 record this time around.

Await Invitations

Both the SUNYAC and overall schedules of all ten members are now completed. Buffalo, Oneonta, Brockport and Plattsburgh are hopeful that the selection committees for post season tournament play will take a long hard look at their records and acknowledge these efforts with a bid to compete in such tournaments as the NCAA University Division, NCAA Atlantic Coast Regional and the NAIA.

Florida Star Gains Honors

"It was," said Florida Coach Ray Graves, "the greatest run I have ever seen in college football."

"It" was a 52-yard scoring dash made by flanker Richard Trapp late in the game that brought Florida within two points of Georgia. Moments later, Trapp caught a 24-yard pass, setting up a field goal that won the game for the Gators 17-16.

Trapp, the Associated Press Back of the Week, broke no fewer than seven tackles on his touchdown run, game films revealed. In all, the 6-foot-2, 170-pound senior caught nine passes for 171 yards.

Trapp is the kind of player who gets mad if he doesn't go all the way every time he catches the ball. Graves said, and this competitive spirit made him a .350 hitter for Florida during the baseball season and the school's former pool and ping pong champion.

It also led him to rifle an assistant coach's desk to "borrow" some pictures of last year's Georgia-Florida game for some last-minute boning up. "We never had a boy work harder to play," Graves said.

A close runner-up for Back of the Week was UCLA quarterback Gary Beban, who completed 14 of 22 passes for 289 yards and three touchdowns in the Bruins' 38-0 victory over Washington. Beban also scored on a 24-yard run.

State's Targia 2nd in SUNY

Misses First By One Goal

Angelo Targia of State University New Paltz, the early season pace setter, fell behind Bill Garvery of Plattsburgh in the final statistics in the State University Athletic Conference.

Garvery finished with 9 goals and two assists, while Targia, a fast starter, collected 7 goals for second place, one ahead of Werner Kluefer of Oneonta. Two other Hawks—Pete Kane and Clem M'Badinui—scored three goals each.

Buffalo State

Buffalo State has taken the 1967 SUNYAC soccer title by virtue of a 2-1 victory over Cortland State. The Orangemen ran right down to the wire with Oneonta which held the team standings into the next to final week only to suffer a 4-2 loss to Brockport College. The loss opened the door for Buffalo and the ensuing win over Cortland gave them the title.

Buffalo becomes the ninth Conference champion since the onset of league play in 1959, with this being the first title for Coach Fred Hartwick and his fine club. Coach Fred Holway of Cortland holds the distinction of having won five SUNYAC titles. His teams won in 1959, 60, 62, 63 and 64. Brockport won in 1961 and New Paltz and Oswego won it in 1965 and 1966, respectively.

The New Paltz Hawks dropped to eighth place with a 2-4 record this time around.

Await Invitations

Both the SUNYAC and overall schedules of all ten members are now completed. Buffalo, Oneonta, Brockport and Plattsburgh are hopeful that the selection committees for post season tournament play will take a long hard look at their records and acknowledge these efforts with a bid to compete in such tournaments as the NCAA University Division, NCAA Atlantic Coast Regionals and the NAIA.

Florida Star Gains Honors

"It was," said Florida Coach Ray Graves, "the greatest run I have ever seen in college football."

"It" was a 52-yard scoring dash made by flanker Richard Trapp late in the game that brought Florida within two points of Georgia. Moments later, Trapp caught a 24-yard pass, setting up a field goal that won the game for the Gators 17-16.

Trapp, the Associated Press Back of the Week, broke no fewer than seven tackles on his touchdown run, game films revealed. In all, the 6-foot-2, 177-pound senior caught nine passes for 171 yards.

Trapp is the kind of player who gets mad if he doesn't go all the way every time he catches the ball, Graves said, and this competitive spirit made him a .350 hitter for Florida during the baseball season and the school's former pool and ping pong champion.

It also led him to rifle an assistant coach's desk to "borrow" some pictures of last year's Georgia-Florida game for some last-minute boning up. "We never had a boy work harder to play," Graves said.

A close runner-up for Back of the Week was UCLA quarterback Gary Beban, who completed 14 of 22 passes for 289 yards and three touchdowns in the Bruins' 38-0 victory over Washington. Beban also scored on a 24-yard run.

THE MOST VALUABLE—Carl Yastrzewski, the American League's 1967 Triple Crown champion and Most Valuable Player, throws a snowball to emphasize the weather Tuesday in Buffalo. He was greeted with the snow while on a speaking engagement and was delayed two hours in Syracuse by a snowstorm. (UPI TELEPHOTO.)

Yastrzewski Near Unanimous M.V.P.

NEW YORK (AP)—Carl Yastrzewski of the Boston Red Sox, coming within a single first-place vote of unanimous selection, was named the American League's Most Valuable Player for the 1967 baseball season today.

The 28-year-old outfielder, winner of the circuit's Triple Crown while leading the Red Sox to their first pennant since 1918, drew 19 votes for first place and one for second in the balloting by 20 members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Cesar Tovar, a Minnesota sparkplug while playing second base, third base and center field, drew the other first-place vote, but finished in a seventh-place tie in the over-all balloting. Tovar batted .267 last season.

Yastrzewski thus failed to match the unanimity achieved by Orlando Cepeda of the St. Louis Cardinals in capturing the National League's MVP award last week.

Collects 275 Points
Yastrzewski collected 275 points in becoming the first Red Sox player since Jackie Jensen in 1958 to take the MVP prize. The voting by two baseball writers from each city was on a basis of 14 points for a first-place vote, 9 for second, 8 for third down to 1 for each 10th place vote.

Twins' slugger Harmon Killebrew placed second with 161 points followed by catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit, 137 points, pitcher Joe Horlen of the Chicago White Sox 91, outfielder Al Kaline of Detroit 88, and pitcher Jim Lonborg of Boston, 82.

Tovar and shortstop Jim Fregosi of California had 70 points apiece. Pitcher Gary Peters of the White Sox and first baseman George Scott of Boston rounded out the first 10 on an over-all list of 24.

Frank Robinson of Baltimore, a unanimous choice as AL MVP in 1966, finished 11th this year with only 31 points. He was sidelined for almost four weeks with a mild concussion that resulted in double vision, but still wound up second to Yastrzewski in batting with a .311 average.

Yastrzewski's batting mark was .326. He tied Killebrew for the home run title with 44 and led in RBI with 121.

The Boston star's contribution was rarely more evident than

Future of He--She TV Show in Doubt

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The travails of television programming during this traumatic season can be illustrated with the new series, "He and She."

The title roles are played by Richard Benjamin, an accomplished light comedian from Broadway — "Star Spangled Girl"—and Paula Prentiss, one of the screen's best new comedienne—"What's New, Pussycat?" The show is generally bright and funny, by television standards, and critical comment was mostly good. But the future of the show is iffy.

The reason: "He and She" appears on CBS opposite the ABC Wednesday night movie. And few series have been able to win the rating race against feature films.

"We've been holding our own but it has been tough," says Benjamin, a tall, collegiate-looking man with a ready laugh. "If we can get into that zone between No. 30 and No. 40 in the ratings, then we might be picked up for next year. If not, we're through."

"The networks decide entirely on the ratings. Even though it seems impossible to beat the movies, they say, 'We'll keep looking for a show that can lick them.' For years CBS kept looking for a show that could beat 'Bonanza.' They finally found one with the Smothers Brothers."

That convinced them that any show can be beaten, if they look long enough."

Thus the jeopardy for family type shows has increased. Such series usually require a long break-in period for both cast and viewers; the Danny Thomas and Dick Van Dyke shows barely survived limp first seasons, as did "Bachelor Father" and "Father Knows Best."

"It takes time for all of us to work together as a team," explained Miss Prentiss, a leggy, low-voiced beauty. "It also takes time for the audience to grow acquainted with the characters. When that happens, you get more laughs, because they grow out of the character."

So far "He and She" has survived the option period for the remainder of this season. The series' survival probably won't be known until mid-April, when the cancellations start to fall.

Reveal Plenty Water Available In Susquehanna

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — There's plenty of water available for the foreseeable future in the Susquehanna River basin in New York.

That was the word today from the U.S. Geological Survey, which made public findings of the preliminary results of a federal-state study of the region.

The river basin in New York extends along the Southern Tier from Sidney, southwest of Oneonta, to near North Cohocton, northeast of Hornell.

The U.S. Geological Survey's report, made in conjunction with the State Conservation Department, said 3.7 cubic miles of water enters the basin annually as rain, snow, fog, or the like.

Of that precipitation, 1.5 cubic miles evaporates, and the remainder spreads over and through the ground.

Greene Native Is Promoted at Stock Exchange

LEE ARNING

Robert W. Haack, president of the New York State Exchange, has announced two major appointments.

R. John Cunningham has been promoted as executive vice president, effective Feb. 1, 1968. He will succeed Edward C. Gray, who is retiring.

Haack named Lee Arning, a native of Palenville, an Exchange vice president, as vice president for operations, effective Jan. 1, 1968.

Cunningham, 41, has been senior vice president of the Midwest Stock Exchange. The post of executive vice president at the New York Stock Exchange is the highest staff position next to the presidency.

Haack said the appointments of Cunningham and Arning involve a major restructuring of top-level reporting responsibilities at the Exchange. This marks the first significant major organizational change in the Exchange staff by Haack since he took office Sept. 10.

The Exchange president described the promotion of Arning as "a major step in adding to the executive strength of the Exchange staff." As vice president for Operations, Arning will oversee the largest group of departments at the Exchange, including the Floor Department, Member Firms and the Department of Stock List.

"In his career at the Exchange, he has served in almost all of the departments which will come under his jurisdiction, stock list, floor and member firms," Haack said.

Arning, 44, was recently named vice president and associate director of the Floor Department. Since March, 1966, he had been associate director in charge of floor procedure. He has served 12 years at the Exchange. Arning is a graduate of Rutgers University. He and his wife have two sons and a daughter and reside in Upper Montclair, N. J.

He is a graduate of Ecole Centrale in Paris, a director of the Institute for Advanced Studies in France and of the Societe des Amis de L'Ecole Centrale. He also is a member of the American Chamber of Commerce in France, and a counsellor of the French Chamber of Commerce in the United States.

Enemy Awareness Revealed

Humane Captive Treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is telling its soldiers the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese apparently are showing a "growing awareness of the necessity for humane treatment of prisoners."

A recently-issued troop information booklet on the rights of war prisoners cites as backing for this assessment documents captured from the Viet Cong in South Vietnam.

The booklet was published in September, two months before the Viet Cong released this week three American Army sergeants it had held for a long time.

The Army translated and declassified two documents, both captured last year, at the request of a newsmen.

It calls for "fair treatment"

of prisoners and says: "We give them sufficient food and clothing. We do not beat or insult them and proceed with brainwashing..."

The document reserves to North Vietnam's Central Political Agency the decision on whether prisoners should be exploited for propaganda purposes.

"We must report to the Central Political Agency for instructions whenever we want to show them (the prisoners) before the masses in order to bring down the enemy's prestige or arouse the people's resentment," it says.

The paper says "no permission is granted to beat or to bind prisoners."

Before a prisoner is sent to a compound, it says, he will be issued pajamas, a towel, sandals or wooden shoes.

In prison, the document says, the captive "will be issued according to the prescribed standard a blanket, a mosquito net and a mat."

There are also these instructions for disposal of bodies:

"Bury enemy bodies and mark their graves with epithaphs."

"Gather all personal relics of killed soldiers to deliver to the Central Political Agency."

Resnick Moving Probe Of Farm Bureau to Ohio

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick will hold hearings Friday, in Cleveland, Ohio, to put the spotlight on what he alleges is a clear pattern of fraud and deception against farmers by at least 21 different cooperatives in Ohio.

Resnick has charged that some of the nation's farmer co-ops, particularly those owned and operated by the Farm Bureau are issuing patronage and stock certificates which they are then failing to redeem. He has previously held hearings in Omaha, Neb., Chicago, Ill., and Washington, D. C. on other aspects of Farm Bureau's irregularities.

"The overwhelming number of letters and phone calls that I have received from innocent people who have been taken in by these co-ops and who have invested their life savings in worthless stock certificates is incredible," Resnick said. "I am going to Ohio because the greatest concentration of these abuses are in Ohio Farm Bureau affiliated co-ops."

The Ellenville Democrat has asked SEC to investigate these charges. He also requested Ohio Attorney General William Saxbe, to conduct an investigation. Saxbe subsequently gave the co-ops a clean bill of health. "A startling judgment considering our evidence," Resnick said. Ohio's Assistant Attorney General William Hickey, is expected to attend the hearings.

Resnick indicated that he has sent invitations to testify to approximately 40 members of Farm Bureau co-ops in 21 Ohio counties. He also has invited the managers of the co-ops in these counties to the hearings.

The hearings will be held on

He referred to reports of attempts to freeze bodies, with plans to try reviving them in the future when cures for fatal illnesses may be discovered.

Social Security Measure Has Biggest Boost, Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Social Security bill proposing the biggest cash benefit increase in history—and the highest tax boost—heads for Senate debate with Democratic leaders pushing for passage before Thanksgiving.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield set the start of floor consideration on the bulky measure for this afternoon.

As sent to the floor by the Senate Finance Committee after more than two months of consideration the bill would, as of April next year:

15 PC Check Hike

—Increase the amount of Social Security checks for all 23 million Americans now receiving benefits by at least 15 per cent.

—Raise from $44 to $70 the minimum monthly benefit, a 59 per cent increase. Because of the big percentage boost in minimums, the over-all benefit increases would average nearly 19 per cent.

—Increase total benefits paid by $3.5 billion next year and $5.8 billion in 1969. Under present law, $25.5 billion in Social Security benefits would be paid out in 1968.

—Boost maximum taxes for individuals, and for employers who must match employee contributions, from the present $290.40 a year to $352 in 1968 and $422.40 in 1969.

A House-passed Social Security bill calls for a 12½ per cent minimum over-all boost in benefits and a $6 hike to $50 in the minimum monthly benefit.

Mansfield expressed confidence the bill would clear the Senate and go to conference with the House before the Thanksgiving recess scheduled to begin a week from today.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen told newsmen meanwhile he expects Senate action to be completed on the bill by week's end.

Floor Fight Pledged

The Finance Committee greatly liberalized the version passed by the House in August, putting it much more in line with administration recommendations.

A floor fight on the bill has been pledged by a group of Republicans including Dirksen and Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware, senior GOP member on the Finance Committee.

They said in committee minority reports they would seek to substitute the lower House-approved benefit and tax levels for the Senate panel's version.

The Republicans complained the tax increases next year will not be sufficient to cover projected additional 1968 benefit increases.

Since 1968 is a national election year, "this might be branded by some as political chicanery," the Republicans said.

But it appeared unlikely that Williams, Dirksen and their supporters would get anywhere near solid GOP support for an effort to substitute the House bill.

LEE ARNING

Robert W. Haack, president of the New York State Exchange, has announced two major appointments.

R. John Cunningham has been promoted as executive vice president, effective Feb. 1, 1968. He will succeed Edward C. Gray, who is retiring.

Cunningham, 41, has been senior vice president of the Midwest Stock Exchange. The post of executive vice president at the New York Stock Exchange is the highest staff position next to the presidency.

The Exchange president described the promotion of Arning as "a major step in adding to the executive strength of the Exchange staff." As vice president for Operations, Arning will oversee the largest group of departments at the Exchange, including the Floor Department, Member Firms and the Department of Stock List.

"In his career at the Exchange, he has served in almost all of the departments which will come under his jurisdiction, stock list, floor and member firms," Haack said.

Arning, 44, was recently named vice president and associate director of the Floor Department. Since March, 1966, he had been associate director of the Floor Department in charge of floor procedure. ## Enemy Awareness Revealed

Humane Captive Treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is telling its soldiers the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese apparently are showing a "growing awareness of the necessity for humane treatment of prisoners."

A recently-issued troop information booklet on the rights of war prisoners cites as backing for this assessment documents captured from the Viet Cong in South Vietnam.

The booklet was published in September, two months before the Viet Cong released this week three American Army sergeants it had held for a long time.

The Army translated and declassified two documents, both captured last year, at the request of a newsmen.

One of the documents, bearing the heading "Democratic Republic of Viet Nam," admonishes against "the binding of prisoners' legs and arms and carrying him like a pig."

It calls for "fair treatment"

of prisoners and says: "We give them sufficient food and clothing. We do not beat or insult them and proceed with brainwashing..."

The document reserves to North Vietnam's Central Political Agency the decision on whether prisoners should be exploited for propaganda purposes.

"We must report to the Central Political Agency for instructions whenever we want to show them (the prisoners) before the masses in order to bring down the enemy's prestige or arouse the people's resentment," it says.

The paper says "no permission is granted to beat or to bind prisoners."

Before a prisoner is sent to a compound, it says, he will be issued pajamas, a towel, sandals or wooden shoes.

In prison, the document says, the captive "will be issued according to the prescribed standard a blanket, a mosquito net and a mat."

There are also these instructions for disposal of bodies:

"Bury enemy bodies and mark their graves with epitaphs."

"Gather all personal relics of killed soldiers to deliver to the Central Political Agency."

"Keep secret the deceased's name, age, position and unit."

The document spells out "verbal orders and sentences to be used with U. S. prisoners" and instructs North Vietnamese troops to memorize them.

Police Say Boys Admit Rensselaer School Fire

RENSSELAER, N.Y. (AP) — Police say two boys, aged 15 and 13, have told them they used cigarette lighters to set a fire that destroyed a 71-year-old public school building Monday night.

The fire at School 2, the oldest in this city near Albany, was considered the worst here since 1961.

Three firemen were overcome by smoke and required hospital treatment.

The school housed nearly 400 pupils during class hours, but no one was inside when the fire was reported, shortly after 9:30 p.m.

The city's 12,000-volume public library, which occupied the basement, was damaged extensively.

Police said the boys, whose names were not disclosed because of their ages, were apprehended at their homes.

Police Chief Charles Stewart said the two were taken into custody after police received a tip.

The boys were taken to a detention center pending an appearance in Family Court.

He said the boys admitted using cigarette lighters to start the fire on the first floor of the building.

Dear Abby

No Way for Good 'Match'

By Abigail Van Buren
(© 1967 by Chicago Tribune - N. Y. New Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Did I do a stupid thing? A very handsome middle-aged physician has just moved into my apartment building. And glory be! He is a bachelor, and I am single, too, and am just about the right age for him. He gives me a nice hello when he sees me, but because of his profession he is always in a hurry. I wanted to get to know him better, so I called his office and made an appointment for a routine physical. When I appeared I must say that he was most professional about it, and it was in every sense of the word "routine." He hasn't called me as I hoped he would.

How can I get this doctor interested in me? He sees beautiful women all day long and the competition is terrific. I don't want to scare him off by inviting him to something like a cocktail party, dinner or concert, as I understand he runs a mile from the aggressive-type woman.

Maybe if I could come up with some rare and interesting disease he would take a special interest in me. But how can I get one?

PLAIN JANE

DEAR JANE: Forget the disease. That would only make you more of a "clinical specimen." As it is, when you lined up that "physical" you probably killed your chances. (Ethical doctors do not cavort with their patients.)

Dear Abby: I have put off writing to you for a whole year, and now I can't take it any longer.

It concerns my husband. Let's call him Willie. For our honeymoon Willie took me to his folks' place instead of to a motel. And there I sat for my whole honeymoon, with Willie's Mamma, while Willie and his Daddy went hunting and trapping.

Every weekend since we have been married I've spent with Willie's Mamma. She is a very nice person, don't get me wrong, but I didn't get married to sit around and talk to her.

Before we got married Willie said he loved me and I believed him, but I can't see his running off and leaving me with his Mamma every weekend. What should I do?

WILLIE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I don't see much future in your marriage until you and Willie sit down and have a heart-to-heart talk about how you spend your week-ends. I don't know what Willie has "trapped" (besides you), but let him know if he doesn't pay more attention to you, he may have to go hunting for someone else to keep his Mamma company.

DEAR ABBY: Our 21-year-old daughter is a senior at college. She has written several times asking us if she can bring her boyfriend home with her for the weekend.

My husband and I have discussed this a number of times, and we do not feel that it is the proper thing for her to do. We have nothing against the boy, as we have never even met him.

Our daughter says that all her college friends take their boyfriends home for week-ends. What is your feeling in the matter?

WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If your daughter wants to spend the weekend with her boyfriend, I can't think of a better place for them to be than in your home.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TRYING HARD" IN ROCHESTER: Try harder. If I could recommend a revision of the marriage vows, I would suggest, "LOVE, HONOR AND FORGIVE," instead of "OBEY." I think forgiveness is far more important to a marriage than obedience.

Contract Bridge Can Be Beautiful

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The late Jimmy Maier was a great bridge player and a particularly effective one. In tournament play skill is essential. In rubber bridge play skill helps a lot, but ability to land on your feet when the going is tough is even more important.

one who could not match Jimmy for effectiveness. He felt that Jimmy was going to make four spades. He also remembered that Jimmy had bid a club when he opened out of turn. Maybe a double would drive Jimmy out of his good spot into a bad one.

Jimmy didn't fall into the trap. He didn't know what would happen at four spades, but he was sure that East would not have doubled unless he could take care of five clubs. He passed and made his doubled contract.

"Beautiful, just beautiful," chortled North.

"Not so," replied Jimmy. "I should have redoubled."

After stealing a large quantity of rings and bracelet from the local department store, the two thieves hid the jewelry in a small cache located in a demolished building. The two small boys, pretending they were pirates, were digging a cache in their back yard in order to hide the secret treasure. The students were advised that it was wiser to keep their valuable possessions in a safe deposit box rather than a private cache.

I don't want to scare him off by inviting him to something like a cocktail party, dinner or concert, as I understand he runs a mile from the aggressive-type woman.

Maybe if I could come up with some rare and interesting disease he would take a special interest in me. But how can I get one?

PLAIN JANE

DEAR JANE: Forget the disease. That would only make you more of a "clinical specimen." As it is, when you lined up that "physical" you probably killed your chances. (Ethical doctors do not cavort with their patients.)

Dear Abby: I have put off writing to you for a whole year, and now I can't take it any longer.

Concerns my husband. Let's call him Willie. For our honeymoon Willie took me to his folks' place instead of to a motel. And there I sat for my whole honeymoon, with Willie's Mamma, while Willie and his Daddy went hunting and trapping.

Every weekend since we have been married I've spent with Willie's Mamma. She is a very nice person, don't get me wrong, but I didn't get married to sit around and talk to her.

Before we got married Willie said he loved me and I believed him, but I can't see his running off and leaving me with his Mamma every weekend. What should I do?

WILLIE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I don't see much future in your marriage until you and Willie sit down and have a heart-to-heart talk about how you spend your weekends. I don't know what Willie has "trapped" (besides you), but let him know if he doesn't pay more attention to you, he may have to go hunting for someone else to keep his Mamma company.

DEAR ABBY: Our 21-year-old daughter is a senior at college. She has written several times asking us if she can bring her boyfriend home with her for the weekend.

My husband and I have discussed this a number of times, and we do not feel that it is the proper thing for her to do. We have nothing against the boy, as we have never even met him.

Our daughter says that all her college friends take their boyfriends home for weekends.

What is your feeling in the matter?

WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If your daughter wants to spend the weekend with her boyfriend, I can't think of a better place for them to be than in your home.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TRYING HARD" IN ROCHESTER: Try harder. If I could recommend a revision of the marriage vows, I would suggest, "LOVE, HONOR AND FORGIVE," instead of "OBEY." I think forgiveness is far more important to a marriage than obedience.

Bridge

Contract Bridge Can Be Beautiful

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The late Jimmy Maier was a great bridge player and a particularly effective one. In tournament play skill is essential. In rubber bridge play skill helps a lot, but ability to land on your feet when the going is tough is even more important.

one who could not match Jimmy for effectiveness. He felt that Jimmy was going to make four spades. He also remembered that Jimmy had bid a club when he opened out of turn. Maybe a double would drive Jimmy out of his good spot into a bad one.

Jimmy didn't fall into the trap. He didn't know what would happen at four spades, but he was sure that East would not have doubled unless he could take care of five clubs. He passed and made his doubled contract.

"Beautiful, just beautiful," chorled North.

"Not so," replied Jimmy. "I should have redoubled."

Today's hand shows Jimmy's effectiveness at its peak. If you wonder why he opened with four spades in third seat—the answer is that even the greatest players incur penalties on occasion. Jimmy had opened with one club out of turn!

The bidding reverted to North who had to pass and continue to pass. East passed also, and it was up to Jimmy to decide what to do with his big hand. Here is where effectiveness became all important. He might have settled for a low club bid or tried three no-trump, five clubs or six clubs, but like all effective players, Jimmy had a great fondness for the spade suit. Anyway, he selected four spades as his bid.

As you can see, four spades was a happy choice. Three no-trump won't make unless the defense falls apart. Five clubs can't make at all, but five spades is unbeatable.

East was also an expert but cache (kash) a secret hiding place. After stealing a large quantity of rings and bracelet from the local department store, the two thieves hid the jewelry in a small cache located in a demolished building. The two small boys, pretending they were pirates, were digging a cache in their back yard in order to hide the secret treasure.

The students were advised that it was wiser to keep their valuable possessions in a safe deposit box rather than a private cache.

CBS Interview Scores Again

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) — The second time around isn't always a bit of a bore. In mid-September, when the three television networks were busily introducing their new schedules, CBS' weekly news hour was devoted to a conversation with a man named Eric Hoffer.

Although he had written several books, Hoffer was not exactly a household word. And, between a star-studded old movie and Milton Berle on the "Hollywood Palace," a lot of people missed Eric Seaverid's interview with Hoffer. It caused quite a stir among those who did see it—including the President of the United States—and the network thoughtfully re-broadcast the program Tuesday night.

Hoffer is 65, self-educated and a longshoreman until his mandatory retirement a few months ago. He is a man so full of ideas and wisdom that almost every sentence was meaty.

He talked, mostly, about the joy of work and the glory of the working classes. It was simple talk and infinitely refreshing.

On writing, "I think some of the most original ideas I had... came to me while I was working. What a glorious feeling it is. Here you work, you talk to your partner, and in the back of your head you compose sentences. That's when life is glorious."

On working men: "These people are tremendously intelligent and there isn't an idea in the world that I wouldn't discuss with these people."

On brotherhood: "It's much easier to love humanity as a whole than to love one's neighbor."

On America: "The only people who really feel at home in this country are the common people. America is God's gift to the poor...for the first time in history, the common people could do things on their own."

On youth: "If it wasn't for the question of drugs, I would be all for the hippies because it's a healthy reaction against the rat race."

Along the way he predicted Lyndon B. Johnson would be "the foremost President of the 20th century," inveighed against intellectuals and asserted that the current Negro foment was used "as an instrument by the Negro middle class to fulfill its own desires."

He is a man of original ideas and convictions and Seaverid had little to do as an interviewer beyond steering him into an assortment of subjects. It was a fine hour, and it could be repeated still another time.

Henry Watterson told of a speech he heard between Lincoln and Douglas, illustrating Lincoln's humor. He looked Douglas in the eye, and said: "Lincoln—this tariff, Judge Douglas, should be logical—just tariff enough — just tariff enough, so that we can make these things at home without lowering our wages. In fact, Mr. Douglas, this tariff should be a good deal like a man's legs—just long enough!" Douglas had little short legs reaching Lincoln's coattail, and, turning to Lincoln, he said: "Douglas—Now, Mr. Lincoln, you are a little indefinite. How long should a man's legs be?" Lincoln (with mock gravity) — "A man's legs, Mr. Douglas, should be just long enough to reach — from — his — body — to the — ground — no surplus, no d-e-f-i-c-i-e-n-c-y."

Two-Year Process

Brydges Starts Action on Pledge to Repeal Blaine

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Legislature's top-ranking Republican took the first formal step today to carry out his pledge to repeal the State Constitution's "Blaine Amendment" ban on financial aid to church-operated schools.

Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges filed in his house a measure that would rescind the controversial Blaine stricture via a process that would take at least two years.

Repeal of Blaine was the most controversial step advocated by the proposed new constitution that New York voters spurned in the Nov. 9 election.

In urging voters to reject the Democratic-drawn charter, Brydges had promised he would press for repeal of Blaine through the legislative process of changing the Constitution. Under this procedure, amendments must be approved by two separately elected Legislatures — in this case the 1968 and 1969 sessions — before they can be submitted to the voters for a final say.

Brydges offered his amendment as the first bill in the Senate's "pre-filing" program, under which both houses accept measures for consideration at the 1968 session. Pre-filing in both the Senate and Assembly opened today.

"I think it is obvious...that many people who favor repeal of Blaine voted against the constitution for overriding other reasons," Brydges said in a statement.

1969 Referendum

"In any event," he continued, "the people of this state are entitled to vote separately on this controversial subject. My resolution will permit such a referendum in 1969."

A few weeks before the election, Brydges reported that he had canvassed his Senate Republican majority and had obtained enough pledges of support to pass a repeal measure in his house.

Speaker Anthony J. Travia, who runs the Democratic-controlled Assembly, has said that he is "dedicated" to repealing Blaine and will try to round up the votes in his house. His prospects are considered good.

Although the governor's approval is not required for constitutional amendments, Gov. Rockefeller has supported Blaine repeal and is expected to cooperate in the endeavor.

More Controversy Looms

Nevertheless, the proposal is expected to touch off a renewal of the religious controversy that marked the Constitutional Convention and the election campaign period.

Roman Catholic interests have pushed hard for repeal in hope of obtaining funds for their parochial schools, while many Protestant and Jewish groups have argued that the move would breach the tradition of church-state separation.

Brydges' proposal, directly similar to that adopted by the convention, would substitute for Blaine two provisions designed to assuage the fears of repeal opponents.

One would write into the Constitution a sentence stating that "the Legislature shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion." This language is similar to the U.S. Constitution's "no establishment" clause, regarded as the foundation of church-state separation.

The second provision would authorize any citizen of the state to file a court suit seeking to restrain the state or any local government from unconstitutional acts — including spending public funds.

One Provision Omitted

At present, such "taxpayer suits" are not permitted, unless a person can show that he is damaged personally.

Brydges' measure omits one related provision that was inserted into the Convention's proposed charter as a belated amendment, offered from the floor. Known as the Covington Amendment, it would prohibit discrimination in admitting pupils to any school aided by public funds.

Catholic opponents of that provision, including Brydges, contended it could require parochial schools to admit non-Catholics at the expense of Catholic children. A spokesman for Brydges said that such a prohibition could be adopted by law, if the Legislature chose to do so, and that a constitutional change therefore was not needed.

Pre-file Bill for Lottery Fund Aid to Upstate Schools

Assembly Minority Leader Perry B. Duryea Jr., pre-filed today a bill to guarantee Upstate and Long Island school districts the operating expense aid proposed under the 1967 lottery act.

This bill is co-sponsored by 55 Republican assemblymen including Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock.

The 1967 law establishing the state lottery fund allocates to school districts outside New York City lottery revenues equivalent to 2 per cent of their 1966-67 operating aid, or $15,777,039.

However, while school districts were instructed to budget this increase, receipt of the total amount they budgeted is dependent upon lottery revenues reaching estimated levels.

Duryea said that, based on four months lottery experience, it is possible that the lottery will fall short of the guarantee by about $7.3 million.

Existing state law is interpreted to prevent the state from guaranteeing this shortage by use of other state revenues.

Duryea commented, "On April 2, Governor Rockefeller, Senator Brydges, Speaker Travia, Senator Zaretzki, and I announced, in a joint statement, our agreement on a lottery formula to guarantee these school districts a two per cent increase in operating aid. By using the word 'guarantee' we gave a pledge which the school districts accepted by incorporating the increase in their budgets.

"While everyone hopes the lottery succeeds, we must recognize that our schools have budgeted and are spending this money because we pledged it to them. Now, we in the Legislature must insure that our pledge is honored."

Schiskey Jury To Be Picked On Thursday

Selection of a jury to hear the evidence in the Arthur Wilfred Schiskey first degree murder case is scheduled to begin Thursday in County Court.

Schiskey, 18, of 72 Garden Street, has been indicted by a grand jury for the death of Herman O. Dietz, 72, on the night of Feb. 4, at the Dietz grocery store, 448 Hasbrouck Avenue. Dietz was found by two police officers at the store when they stopped to check the store when they observed a broken glass in the door. Dietz was unconscious in the store and never gained consciousness to identify his assailant.

William A. Kelly has been assigned as defense counsel.

Students Tour County Sites

Fifty senior students, members of the Responsible Citizens class of Marlboro High School, were given a first hand look at county government today when they visited the Ulster County court house and county office building to see governmental activities in action.

Half of the group was taken to the various governmental areas to view activities while the other group was at other locations. Among the areas visited by the students were the county jail, the County Office Building and the courts where County Investigator Arthur H. Brown, assigned to the district attorney's office, explained the operation of the civil and criminal court activities.

Two-Year Process

Brydges Starts Action on Pledge to Repeal Blaine

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Legislature's top-ranking Republican took the first formal step today to carry out his pledge to repeal the State Constitution's "Blaine Amendment" ban on financial aid to church-operated schools.

Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges filed in his house a measure that would rescind the controversial Blaine clause via a process that would take at least two years.

Repeal of Blaine was the most controversial step advocated by the proposed new constitution that New York voters spurned in the Nov. 9 election.

In urging voters to reject the Democratic-drawn charter, Brydges had promised he would press for repeal of Blaine through the legislative process.

of changing the Constitution. Under this procedure, amendments must be approved by two separately elected Legislatures.

of Blaine voted against the constitution for overriding other reasons," Brydges said in a statement.

Speaker Anthony J. Travia, who runs the Democratic-controlled Assembly, has said that he is "dedicated" to repealing Blaine and will try to round up the votes in his house. His prospects are considered good.

The second provision would authorize any citizen of the state to file a court suit seeking to restrain the state or any local government from unconstitutional acts — including spending public funds.

Pre-file Bill for Lottery Fund Aid to Upstate Schools

Assembly Minority Leader Perry B. Duryea Jr., pre-filed today a bill to guarantee Upstate and Long Island school districts the operating expense aid proposed under the 1967 lottery act.

This bill is co-sponsored by 55 Republican assemblymen including Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock.

The 1967 law establishing the state lottery fund allocates to school districts outside New York City lottery revenues equivalent to 2 per cent of their 1966-67 operating aid, or $15,777,039.

However, while school districts were instructed to budget this increase, receipt of the total amount they budgeted is dependent upon lottery revenues reaching estimated levels.

Duryea said that, based on four months lottery experience, it is possible that the lottery will fall short of the guarantee by about $7.3 million.

Existing state law is interpreted to prevent the state from guaranteeing this shortage by use of other state revenues.

Duryea commented, "On April 2, Governor Rockefeller, Senator Brydges, Speaker Travia, Senator Zaretzki, and I announced, in a joint statement, our agreement on a lottery formula to guarantee these school districts

a two per cent increase in operating aid. By using the word 'guarantee' we gave a pledge which the school districts accepted by incorporating the increase in their budgets.

"While everyone hopes the lottery succeeds, we must recognize that our schools have budgeted and are spending this money because we pledged it to them. Now, we in the Legislature must insure that our pledge is honored."

Schiskey Jury To Be Picked On Thursday

Selection of a jury to hear the evidence in the Arthur Wilfred Schiskey first degree murder case is scheduled to begin Thursday in County Court.

Schiskey, 18, of 72 Garden Street, has been indicted by a grand jury for the death of Herman O. Dietz, 72, on the night of Feb. 4, at the Dietz grocery store, 448 Hasbrouck Avenue. Dietz was found by two police officers at the store when they stopped to check the store when they observed a broken glass in the door. Dietz was unconscious in the store and never gained consciousness to identify his assailant.

William A. Kelly has been assigned as defense counsel.

Students Tour County Sites

Fifty senior students, members of the Responsible Citizens class of Marlboro High School, were given a first hand look at county government today when they visited the Ulster County court house and county office building to see governmental activities in action.

Half of the group was taken to the various governmental areas to view activities while the other group was at other locations. Among the areas visited by the students were the county jail, the County Office Building and the courts where County Investigator Arthur H. Brown, assigned to the district attorney's office, explained the operation of the civil and criminal court activities.

Tonight, some light rain is forecast along the Northeast California coast. Showers are expected in the Northern Intermountain Region and snow or snow flurries along the shores of the Great Lakes in Eastern New York State and also in New England. Clear to partly cloudy skies are forecast to spread into the Eastern Plains and the upper and mid-Mississippi Valley. Colder air will push down into the Atlantic states from Maine to South Carolina. Little temperature change elsewhere. Minimum readings include: Atlanta 33, Boston 18, Chicago 25, Cleveland 20, Denver 34, Duluth 25, Ft. Worth 49, Jacksonville 53, Los Angeles 60, Miami 64, New York 25, San Francisco 55, Seattle 40, St. Louis 29, and Washington 25.

More Controversy Looms

Nevertheless, the proposal is expected to touch off a renewal of the religious controversy that marked the Constitutional Convention and the election campaign period.

Roman Catholic interests have pushed hard for repeal in hope of obtaining funds for their parochial schools, while many Protestant and Jewish groups have argued that the move would breach the tradition of church-state separation.

Brydges' proposal, directly similar to that adopted by the convention, would substitute for Blaine two provisions designed to assuage the fears of repeal opponents.

One would write into the Constitution a sentence stating that "the Legislature shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion." This language is similar to the U.S. Constitution's "no establishment" clause, regarded as the foundation of church-state separation.

One Provision Omitted

At present, such "taxpayer suits" are not permitted, unless a person can show that he is damaged personally.

Brydges' measure omits one related provision that was inserted into the Convention's proposed charter as a belated amendment, offered from the floor. Known as the Covington Amendment, it would prohibit discrimination in admitting pupils to any school aided by public funds.

Catholic opponents of that provision, including Brydges, contended it could require parochial schools to admit non-Catholics at the expense of Catholic children.

A spokesman for Brydges said that such a prohibition could be adopted by law, if the Legislature chose to do so, and that a constitutional change therefore was not needed.
